I. Preface

Dear Colleagues,
IAHR Members and Affiliates,
Officers of IAHR Member Associations and Affiliate Societies

This IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement, Bern Edition, May 2018 is primarily meant to serve as a booklet of reference materials to be used by the members of the IAHR International Committee, i.e. the delegates appointed by member and affiliated organizations to represent them at the International Committee Meeting 2018, Bern, Switzerland, Tuesday, June 19, 13:00-15:00.

Therefore, some important documents previously sent to you are reproduced and included in this e-Bulletin Supplement, such as Minutes from the IAHR International Committee Meeting, Erfurt, 2015. All references that you will need for the International Committee Meeting 2018, Bern, are also included so that you will not have to look elsewhere in preparation.

Although this e-Bulletin Supplement serves this special function, I ask you to forward it to the members of your association or society. If the IAHR membership is not kept well informed about the activities of the IAHR, including the work and business of the IAHR Executive and International Committees, the IAHR cannot function effectively and may eventually face serious problems.

If you have any question, regarding the International Committee Meeting 2018, Bern, or any other matter related to the IAHR, please do not hesitate to contact me: fujiwara@l.u-tokyo.ac.jp.

Respectfully yours

Satoko Fujiwara, IAHR Acting General Secretary

II. Final Call and Provisional Agenda: IAHR International Committee Meeting, Bern, 2018

Final Call: International Committee Meeting 2018, Bern, Switzerland, Tuesday, June 19, 13:00-15:00  Unitobler, Room F021 at the University of Bern

According to the IAHR By-Laws, Rule 4b, “The International Committee meets at the location and time of the quinquennial congress. In addition, the session between consecutive quinquennial congresses shall be held at the location and time of an IAHR conference.”

According to the IAHR Constitution, Article 4(b) The International Committee is composed of:

(i) Two representatives each of the constituent national and regional societies;
(ii) The Executive Committee (see below);
(iii) Up to four individual members co-opted by the International Committee on the recommendation of the Executive Committee.

According to Rule 3.d,

[the General Secretary shall notify the officers of the constituent societies and/or the members of the Executive Committee concerning the date, place and provisional agenda of each session at the latest one month in advance.

A first call and later a reminder have been sent to the officers of the IAHR member and affiliate associations and societies, and this call therefore serves as the final call.

The IAHR By-Laws, Rule 5.c reads:

The executive committee of each constituent national or regional society and association appoints no more than two representatives to each International Committee meeting. These are normally, but not necessarily, the president and secretary of the constituent society or association. In addition, each affiliated association may appoint no more than one (non-voting) representative to attend each International Committee meeting.

Please remember that the Secretary General of the IAHR shall be notified about the names of the designated representatives (By-Laws, Rule 5e), and also (Rule 5d) that “Members of the Executive Committee of the IAHR ... may not serve as representatives for their constituent societies or associations at the International Committee meetings.”

I have received notifications from some member associations and affiliates as to their appointed representatives, but I still need to hear from quite a few associations and officers.

I, therefore, sincerely ask you to appoint your delegate(s) to the 2018 IAHR International Committee and to email me the name(s) as soon as possible.

In addition, please remember that, as I have indicated in my reminder sent on December 3, 2017, those representatives outside Europe who are unable to leave their countries are invited to attend the International Committee meeting via internet (Zoom). In this case also, please send me the names and email addresses of the representatives as soon as possible.

Provisional Agenda:

1. Adoption of the Agenda

2. Membership: 2.1. Ascertainment of Membership; 2.2. Ascertainment of Affiliation; 2.3 Co-option as Recommended by the Executive Committee

Tokyo, May 18, 2018
III. Minutes from the IAHR International Committee Meeting, Erfurt, August 26, 2015

[To be adopted at the next International Committee Meeting in Bern, June 2018]
[Preliminarily adopted by the IAHR Executive Committee, January 30, 2016]

The President, Prof. Rosalind I. J. Hackett presiding.
Prof. Hackett welcomed the delegates of the International Committee and asked the General Secretary, Prof. Tim Jensen, to ascertain that the meeting had been announced and called in accordance with the IAHR Rules of Procedure. With reference to the General Secretary’s report in the IAHR BULLETIN 40, Erfurt Congress Edition, August 2015, p.52, Prof. Jensen confirmed that the meeting had been announced several times and in accordance with the IAHR Rules of Procedure Rule 3d, by way of the IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement, the IAHR website, and specific emails sent to IAHR officers. The first call was published in the IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement, September 2014, pp. 40–41.

1 Adoption of the Agenda

With reference to a need arising from the anticipated transfer of the IAHR bank accounts (from Ireland to Switzerland), the Treasurer and the General Secretary asked that an extra item (‘Proposed Changes to the Constitution Caused by Transfer of Bank Account’) be added as item 12 to the agenda, thus making “Any other business” item 13. With this amendment, the agenda was unanimously adopted.

2 Membership

Prof. Jensen referred to the Constitution Article 4b, according to which the International Committee of the IAHR is composed of:
(i) Two representatives each of the constituent national and regional societies;
(ii) The Executive Committee[…];
(iii) Up to four individual members co-opted by the International Committee on the recommendation of the Executive Committee.

Prof. Jensen added that the IAHR at the moment had no individual members but that Rule 6 allowed for the International Committee, on the recommendation of the Executive Committee, to adopt observers and/or consultants to participate in its sessions without voting rights.

With reference to Rule 5d Prof. Jensen noted that “[m]embers of the Executive Committee of the IAHR may not serve as representatives for their constituent societies at the International Committee meetings”. Prof. Jensen also stressed that no representative can represent more than one association.

2.1 Ascertainment of Membership

The following members of the Executive Committee of the IAHR were present: President Rosalind I.J. Hackett; Vice-president Ingvild S. Gilhus; Vice-president Abdulkader Tayob; General Secretary Tim Jensen; Deputy General Secretary Mar Marcos; Treasurer Brian Bocking; Deputy Treasurer Marianna Shakhnovich; Membership Secretary Abraham H. Khan; Publications Officer Morny Joy; Members without Portfolio Satoko Fujiwara and Amarjiva Lochan.

Apologies from: Internet Officer Silas Guerriero.

The following representatives of the IAHR national and regional member societies and associations were present: Africa (AASR): Afe Adogame & Elias Bongmba; Australia (AASR): Carole Cusack; Austria (ÖGRW): Rüdiger Lohiker & Franz Winter; Belgium (BABEL): Jos Verheyden & Daniel Praet; Brazil (ABHR/BAHR): none; Canada (CSSR/ SCÉR) [one vote only]: none; Canada(Québec) (SQÉR) [one vote only]: none; China (CARS): Zheng Xiaoyun; Czech Republic (CASR): Tomáš Bubík & David Zbíral; Denmark (DASR): Jørn Borup &Laura Feldt; Eastern Africa (EAASR): none; Europe (EASR): Einar Thomassen & Marco Pasi; Estonia (EAUS/ESSR): Jaan Lahe & Ülo Valk; Finland (SUS): Peter Nynäs & Anna Haapalainen; France: Charles Guittard & Régine Guittard; Germany (DVRW): Christoph Bochinger & Christoph Kleine; Greece (GSSCR): Panayotis Pachis & Olympia Panagiotidou; Hungary (MVT): Abraham Kovács & Bulcsu Hoppál; India (IASR): none; Ireland (ISASR): James Kapalo & Alexandra Grieser; Italy (SISR): Giovanni Casadio & Alessandro Saggioro; Japan (JASR): Takeshi Kimura & Yoshitsugu Sawai; Latin America (ALER): none; Latvia (LRPB): none; Lithuania (LSSR): Milda Ališauskienė; Mercosur/South America (ACSRM): none; Mexico (SMER): Yolotl González Torres; Netherlands (NGG): Markus Altena Davidsen; New Zealand (NZASR): Geoff Troughton & Douglas Pratt; North America (NAASR): Luther M. Martin & Donald Wiebe; Norway (NRF): Knut A. Jacobsen; *Poland (PTR): [see below]; Romania (RAHR): none; Russia: Ekaterina Teryukova & Elena Stepanova Slovakia (SSŠN/SASR): none; South Korea (KAHR): Chae Young Kim; Southern Africa (ASRSA): none; South and Southeast Asia (SSEASR): Sophana Srichampa & LeHang Nga; Spain (SECR): Francisco Diez de Velasco & Santiago Montero; Sweden (SSRF): Jenny Berglund & David Thurfjell; Switzerland (SGR/SSSR): Jens Schlieter & Anja Kirsch; Turkey (TAHR): none; Ukraine (UARR): Anatoliy Kolodnyy & Liudmyla Fylypovych; United Kingdom (BASR): Bettina Schmidt & Graham Harvey; United States (AAR): Amy Allocco & Robert Puckett.

(*) The association or society was (at the time of the meeting of the International Committee) not paid up to the latest completed financial year (2014), and thus not entitled to vote, neither at the International Committee Meeting nor at the General Assembly.

() The Executive Committee has declared the membership lapsed but had not yet struck the name of the association from the list of member associations. The association in question thus had no voting rights. According to the IAHR Rules of Procedure 15a and 15b “The General Secretary, in consultation with members of the Executive Committee, shall alone determine whether a constituent society or association is fully paid up at the time of any vote to be taken …”

Ascertaining the membership and the right to vote of those present, some colleagues present claiming to be members of the Nigerian Association for the Study of Religions were kindly asked to leave the room since the membership of the named association had been declared lapsed. Besides, no representatives or delegates from the named association had been announced. Two confirmed representatives of the Polish association were allowed to be present but with no voting rights, since the Polish association was not paid up to the latest completed financial year (2014).
(During the ascertainment of membership an error was discovered: the listing in the IAHR BULLETIN 40, Erfurt Congress Edition, August 2015, pp. 8–14 of the national member associations and societies, with an indication of whether they were paid up or not, incorrectly indicated that the CSSR/SCÉR (Canada) was not fully paid up to the latest completed financial year (2014).)

With reference to Article 6 and Rule 10, according to which “A meeting of the International Committee requires a minimum attendance of ten members from a minimum of seven national associations”, Prof. Hackett concluded that the International Committee had a quorum.

2.2. Ascertainment of Affiliation
With reference to the Rules of Procedure, Rule 5c according to which “each affiliated association may appoint no more than one (non-voting) representative to attend each International Committee meeting”, it was ascertained that the following affiliated associations and societies were present:
European Society for the Study of Western Esotericism (ESSWE): Henrik Bogdan;
International Association for the Cognitive Science of Religion (IACSR): Dimitris Xygalatas;
International Study of Religion in Eastern and Central Europe Association (ISORECEA): Eileen Barker; Society for Ancient Mediterranean Religions (SAMR): Jeffrey Brodd.

2.3 Co-option as Recommended by the Executive Committee
With reference to the Rules of Procedure, Rule 5.f. provision that “[o]n the recommendation of the Executive Committee, up to four individuals may be co-opted as voting members by the International Committee at the beginning of the session”, the General Secretary reported that presently there were no individual members.

With reference to Rule 6, allowing the International Committee, on the recommendation of the Executive Committee, to adopt observers and/or consultants to participate in its sessions without voting rights, the General Secretary reported that the IAHR Executive Committee recommended that a representative of the applicant Philippine association, Prof. Esmeralda Sanchez, be allowed to participate. The Executive Committee also recommended that Prof. Michael Pye be allowed to participate in order for him to function as ‘returning officer’ during the elections. The International Committee unanimously agreed to adopt the mentioned colleagues as observers without voting rights.

Moreover, it was recommended that nominees for the 2015–2020 Executive Committee who were in Erfurt but not already participating as delegates from member associations be allowed to be present not only in order for them to deliver an oral statement of candidacy but also to understand better the workings of the Committee in advance of the election. Consequently, Profs. Peter Beyer, Anne Kubai, Ann Taves, and Katja Triplett were by unanimous agreement allowed to be present without voting rights.

Last but not least, it was proposed by the Executive Committee that Prof. Armin W. Geertz, serving as chair of the IAHR 2010–2015 Honorary Life Membership Advisory Committee be admitted to the meeting in order for him to present the suggestions from that committee to the International Committee. The International Committee unanimously agreed to this proposal.
3 Minutes of the International Committee Meeting, Liverpool 2013

The Minutes (IAHR BULLETIN Number 40, Erfurt Congress Edition, August 2015, pp. 17–36), preliminarily adopted by the Executive Committee July 29, 2014 and first published in the IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement, September 2014, pp.14–39 and thus circulated to the members of the IAHR International Committee in accordance with the relevant rule(s), were unanimously adopted by the International Committee.

4 Report by the General Secretary

The General Secretary initially honored the memory of the following IAHR Honorary Life Members who had passed away since the World Congress in Toronto 2010: Professor Jean Leclant († September 16, 2011) Professor Julien Ries († February 23, 2013) Professor Noriyoshi Tamaru († December 12, 2014) Professor Jacques Waardenburg († April 8, 2015) Professor R.J. Zwi Werblowsky († July 9, 2015).
He extended condolences to their families. Obituaries have been or will be published, he added.

With reference to his full and detailed written report, published in the IAHR BULLETIN 40, Erfurt Congress Edition, August 2015, pp. 49–77, Prof. Jensen expressed his wish to restrict the oral report to a minimum in order to provide more time for other items on the agenda.

Prof. Jensen consequently focused on the following:

4.1 Executive Committee and International Committee: Meetings and Meeting Locations

Prof. Jensen extended thanks to all the hosting member associations (the SSEASR, the SSRF, the BASR, the EASR, the AASR, and the DVRW) and their various local partners and university departments for facilitating the meetings of the Executive and International Committee since 2011. With reference to his written report as well as to his report to the International Committee in Liverpool 2013 on the same issue, he deemed it fair to say that the outgoing Executive Committee had been fairly successful with its efforts to implement the IAHR principle of rotation, i.e., to move the Executive as well as International Committee meetings around the world. The principle of rotation and its implementation has been and remains, Prof. Jensen said, highly important for our continued efforts to enhance and extend the IAHR as a global association and thus to promote the academic, non-religious study of religions globally, the key aim of the IAHR.

4.2 Communications

The IAHR Bulletin and the IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement, together with the IAHR website and occasional email letters with important pieces of information sent to the officers and members at large of the IAHR member associations and affiliates, constitute the main means of communication from and about the IAHR. Consequently, it is of the utmost importance to the well-being and functioning of the IAHR that the officers of the IAHR member associations and affiliated societies forward the digital version of the IAHR Bulletin and the digital IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement to their membership, and Prof. Jensen therefore urged the officers to do everything in their power to share these and other news items from the IAHR with their membership at large. The IAHR Executive Committee and its General Secretary have no other means to contact the IAHR members directly, neither by regular mail nor by email.

With its information about the more permanent ‘fundamentals’ of the IAHR (the IAHR Constitution and Rules of Procedure, the IAHR membership and leadership, past congresses and conferences, proceedings, publications and proceedings, NVME, and the Women Scholars Network) as well as about most of the news and information from the IAHR General Secretary’s desk, the IAHR website together with the IAHR Bulletin and IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement functions as the public face of the IAHR. Prof. Jensen mentioned that the website had been revamped in 2013, inter alia to better accommodate the needs and wishes of the Executive Committee. The General Secretary — in continuous contact over the past 7–8 years with the IAHR webmaster, Jeremy Hughes (Knoxville, USA), extended his heartfelt thanks to the webmaster for his almost daily work with the IAHR website, updating information, posting of news, etc. Though the IAHR Facebook Group, in contrast to the IAHR website, is not meant to serve as an official vehicle or platform for news from the IAHR Executive, it nevertheless serves an important purpose which the website does not, namely communication among individual IAHR members and information about IAHR related events and matters. Prof. Jensen thanked the President, Prof. Hackett and the colleagues assisting her, Justin Lane and Sarah Gallant, for the work with the IAHR Facebook Group. Likewise, he extended thanks to Prof. Hackett and Publications Officer Prof. M. Joy for their untiring efforts developing the IAHR Women Scholars Network, also by way of the 2015 revamped website, and the General Secretary also took the opportunity to extend thanks to all the scholars actively participating in and supporting the IAHR Women Scholars Network, thereby helping the IAHR pursue its efforts to practice a responsible strategy and implementation of globalization, as well as to work continually towards gender equality and empowerment of women scholars, and, by extension, IAHR-related scholarship around the world.

4.3 IAHR Congresses and Conferences

With reference to his extensive written report listing the 2010–2015 IAHR Special and Regional Conferences (as well as the IAHR Co-Sponsored Conference in Macau 2015) and his extensive report on the bids for and decision regarding the hosting of the 2015 World Congress, Prof. Jensen extended thanks to all the colleagues whose engagement and hard work had made these IAHR conferences and the World Congresses in Toronto and Erfurt possible. Special thanks were extended to the BASR (UK) and the CASR (Czech Republic) and their local partners; the two member associations that had joined the DVRW in preparing and sending detailed and impressive bids for hosting the 2015 World Congress. Prof. Jensen briefly summarized his report on the many meetings that since 2011 had taken place between the IAHR leadership and the German Congress hosts. He himself, the Deputy General Secretary, the President, and the Treasurer, had been in continuous email and telephone contact with the German hosts on all relevant matters, e.g. the overall planning of meetings, sessions and social events, problems arising in spite of the meticulous work executed by the Academic Program Committee, and the distribution of travel grants made possible, inter alia, by an IAHR total grant of approx. 18,000 EUR. Indeed, all members of the Executive Committee had been involved in various aspects of the planning of the Congress as well as in discussions leading to distributions of grants. With the grants provided by the German hosts and various German institutions the total amount used for subsidies amounts to 32,275 EUR, and some 52 scholars have been assisted. Some 1,600 panels and papers had been submitted, of which some 1,500 were included in the final program. The number of registered participants passed 1,000, thus putting extra pressure on the German hosts for everything to be in place in order to accommodate this relatively large number of participants.

Prof. Jensen on behalf of the IAHR Executive Committee extended heartfelt thanks to the Congress directors, Profs. Rüpke and Bochinger as well as to Congress Coordinator Dr. Begemann, to the members of the (local) Organizing Committee, and to each member of the Academic Program Committee, including, of course, the two co-chairs, Profs. Bochinger and Marcos, for their meticulous and hard work, including their constant efforts to help align the academic standard of the IAHR World Congress academic program with the general aims of the IAHR and the IAHR’s ongoing efforts constantly to improve, secure and tighten up its academic profile. Congress directors Bochinger and Rüpke have contributed to the special NVMEN 60th Anniversary celebratory publication (see ahead) with an article unfolding their reflections in regard to the congress theme and the dynamics of the academic study of religions.

Prof. Jensen also extended thanks to the IAHR Honorary Life Members who kindly accepted to serve as members of the Congress Advisory Committee, and he extended special thanks to Dorothea Ditchfield who had generously sponsored the Gary Lease IAHR Memorial Lecture and whose support was highly important with regard to making the Gary Lease IAHR Memorial Lecture an established feature of IAHR World Congresses. Gary Lease, who passed away in 2008 while serving as the IAHR Treasurer, was a staunch supporter of the IAHR and its aim: to promote and strengthen the academic and non-religious study of religions worldwide. To have, the General Secretary added, Prof. Hubert Seiwert deliver the 2015 Gary Lease IAHR Memorial Lecture in the shape of the Opening Lecture bodes well for the future of the IAHR and the Gary Lease IAHR Memorial Lecture.

Before finishing his report on IAHR conferences and congresses, Prof. Jensen directed the attention of the members of the International Committee to the revised rules for hosting an IAHR conference, rules now stressing that the member associations hosting an IAHR sponsored conference had an obligation to ensure that the academic program and the individual papers contribute to the general aims of the IAHR as spelled out in the IAHR Constitution, “Article 1: [...]The IAHR [...]has as its objective the promotion of the academic study of religions through the international collaboration of all scholars whose research has a bearing on the subject. The IAHR is not a forum for confessional, apologetical, or other similar concerns.” Furthermore it was now explicit that the IAHR General Secretary be kept informed about developments and provided with conference programs and the address list of the participants, that publication of the proceedings must be consistent with the IAHR congress publication policy, and that the host of an IAHR regional conference, within two months of the event, shall provide the IAHR General Secretary with a brief (max. 1.000 words) report on the conference suitable to be reproduced in an IAHR Bulletin or an IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement.

4.4 Membership Development

With reference to item 10 on the Agenda (“Recommendation of new members and affiliates”), Prof. Jensen limited his oral report to the following:

During 2010–2015, the IAHR has continued the process of globalization as regards the adoption of member associations from various parts of the globe, having furthermore strengthened its position as the pre-eminent global forum for the academic study of religions by way of affiliation to the IAHR of international associations dedicated to the study “of particular areas within the academic study of religions”.

However, he also noted that the Executive Committee in the same period, in accordance with the 2010 revised rules (IAHR Rules of Procedure, Rule 1.c.), had also declared lapsed the membership of some member associations which over several years had not complied with the IAHR requirements as regards the payment of annual fees and/or had not communicated with the IAHR leadership in order to maybe reach an agreement as regards the payment of fees.

Thus the membership of the Asociación Cubana de Estudios sobre la Religión, Israel Society for the History of Religion, the Nigerian Association for the Study of Religions, the Associação Portuguesa para o Estudo das Religiões, and the Indonesian Association for the Study of Religion have all eventually been declared lapsed.

In view of this policy the Executive Committee had agreed on a re-admission policy, and Prof. Jensen with reference to his written report pp. 62–63 asked the members and the member associations to make themselves familiar therewith.

Last but not least, Prof. Jensen mentioned that there was a well-founded hope that an Israel society may spring to life, and that the Nigerian association may be re-admitted in accordance with the re-admission policy by the incoming Executive Committee.

He also mentioned that several colleagues, within and without the IAHR Executive Committee, had been trying to stimulate a process towards the establishment of a new and functioning Indonesian association, and that the IAHR leadership had been in continuous contact in order to offer assistance in case the Cuban colleagues find it suitable to try to establish a new Cuban association.

4.5 Finances, CIPSH, and the IAHR African Trust Fund

With reference to the full report by the Treasurer, Prof. Bocking, the General Secretary stated his satisfaction with the fact that the financial situation in 2015, as well as in 2013 and 2010 (cf. IAHR Bulletin 39, Toronto Congress Edition, August 2010, 42–45; 55–62), was significantly better than in Tokyo 2005 when he first took office. Headed that though the major reason for the improvement was the agreement made with Brill in 2008 as regards NVMEN, a strict scheme in regard to the soliciting of annual dues and the rise in the rate of dues as of 2014, had also contributed to the much healthier state of affairs. However, as spelled out in previous reports by the General Secretary and then acting Treasurer Prof. Jensen as well as by the now outgoing Treasurer Prof. Bocking the situation is not quite as healthy as it looks because it still depends to a significant degree on the capability of most officers and members of the Executive Committee to finance most (at times all) of their IAHR-related expenses themselves. As stated by Prof. Bocking in his report, “[p]roviding EC members with full funding for attendance at EC meetings would have required a significant additional commitment (perhaps 12,000 USD annually) from the IAHR budget.” Prof. Jensen then took the opportunity to express his gratitude for the way in which the outgoing IAHR Treasurer had managed the IAHR finances 2010–2015 as well as for his highly important participation and close cooperation with the General Secretary in the 2006–2008 negotiations with Brill when he served (2005–2010) as Publications Officer. Last but not least, Prof. Jensen extended special thanks to Honorary Life Member, Prof. Akio Tsukimoto for his generous donation to the IAHR. The IAHR rarely receives so generous a gift.

In regard to CIPSH, the Conseil International de la Philosophie et des Sciences Humaines, under UNESCO, the General Secretary initially referred to his earlier reports stating that the IAHR membership to the CIPSH, in terms of fees paid and grants received, had paid off. However, since 2010, this situation had changed dramatically, and in 2013 the IAHR Executive Committee decided to not pay any annual fees to CIPSH unless CIPSH was revived. In 2014 efforts to rescue or revive CIPSH resulted in a call for a General Assembly to be held in Paris, October 14–15, 2014, and it was decided to have the President, Prof. Hackett represent the IAHR in Paris. It was also decided that the General Secretary should nominate Prof. Hackett for a position as Vice-President in the new CIPSH executive committee, and that the IAHR should pay the fee for 2014, but not for 2013 when CIPSH had appeared to be non-functioning. On an additional note it must be remarked that it was later agreed to pay the arrears for 2013, and that Prof. Hackett in Paris was elected one of two CIPSH vice-presidents. A decision, Prof. Jensen added, about any payment of fee for 2015 and about the IAHR’s future relationship with CIPSH has been referred to the incoming 2015–2020 IAHR Executive Committee.

As regarded the IAHR African Trust Fund, Prof. Jensen referred to his written report pp. 65–66 for an overview of applications and grants awarded over the five years 2011–2015. Having summarized the discussion reported on in more length in his written report pp. 66–67, the General Secretary reported on the concluding considerations and unanimous decision taken by the IAHR Executive Committee at its meeting in Cape Town, SA, in 2014 as regards a suggestion to extend the fund beyond 2015 and/or allocating a larger amount than 4,000 USD in 2015 (perhaps to subsidize the travel of scholars from Africa to the IAHR World Congress in Erfurt):

The Executive Committee had agreed on a limit of 4,000 USD each year, an amount of money, moreover, which in most years had turned out to be more than the IAHR African Trust Fund Board of Trustees required. Furthermore, the IAHR had already made a substantial contribution to the Congress travel subsidy fund to support scholars from weaker economies, and the allocation of travel support against published criteria was a matter for the Erfurt Congress Organizing Committee.

The Executive Committee, moreover, noted that the cycle of advertising, adjudicating and awarding the IAHR ATF grants typically ran between Sept–March. Thus, there would be ample time for the incoming Executive Committee meeting in Erfurt to make any arrangements it might deem suitable beyond 2015.

In light of this the Executive Committee at its meeting in Cape Town 2014 agreed:

– that the IAHR ATF in 2015 would continue to run as at present; that is, there would be a final tranche of 4,000 USD from the current fund made available to the IAHR ATF Board of Trustees in 2015, to support research by scholars in line with the IAHR ATF criteria;
– that efforts should be made, as also suggested by the IAHR ATF Board of Trustees Secretary, Prof. Adogame, to publicize the fund to promising candidates at the imminent AASR conference in Cape Town, so that the full allocation could hopefully be disbursed to projects of eligible scope and quality; – that in briefing the new incoming Executive Committee in Erfurt, the outgoing General Secretary would briefly remind members of the history and purpose of the fund and its activation by the 2005–2010 Executive Committee and implementation by the 2010–2015 Executive Committee, as well as of the amount actually spent over the 5 years to 2015.

Prof. Jensen ended his report on the IAHR African Trust Fund by extending thanks to all the members of the Board of Trustees and special thanks to the Secretary to the Board of Trustees, Prof. Afe Adogame.
4.6 IASR Recommendations and IAHR Executive Response

Since the full text of the ‘Recommendations of the IASR Consultation on The Future of the International Association for the History of Religions’ as well as the responses from the Executive Committee had been published several times (first in the IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement, March 2013, pp. 12–20 & 21–35, then in the IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement, Liverpool Edition, August 2013, pp. 42–50 & 51–65), and since the matter, furthermore, was referred to in the General Secretary’s report 2010–2013 (IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement, Liverpool Edition, August 2013, p. 40) as well as in the preliminary Minutes from the International Committee Meeting, Liverpool, September 4, 2015 (IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement, September 2014, pp. 31–32), Prof. Jensen refrained from further reporting on this matter, referring the members to the named publications, all easily accessible on the IAHR website.

Prof. Jensen expressed his gratitude to the members of the IASR Consultation for their steadfast dedication to the IAHR and their continuous concern for its future well-being.

4.7 The IASR Proposal to Change the Name of the IAHR

Prof. Jensen, with reference to item 8 (“Proposal for a Change of Name of the IAHR”) and his written report pp. 68–69 refrained from further comments on this matter.

4.8 The AASR 2010 Proposal ‘Restructuring the IAHR Executive’, Follow-Up

With reference to his detailed written 2015 report (pp. 69–70), to the IAHR Bulletin, 39, Toronto Congress Edition, August 2010, and to the IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement, Liverpool Edition, August 2013, Prof. Jensen summarized the situation as follows: the IAHR International Committee at its meeting in Toronto 2010 concluded its discussion about the AASR proposal by rejecting the proposal. Nevertheless, it asked the 2010–2015 Executive Committee to consider the proposal and the delegations and duties of members of the Executive Committee and to report on its discussions at the International Committee Meeting in 2013. The Executive Committee discussed the matter at meetings in Cork 2013 and reported to the International Committee in Liverpool in 2013, and it also continued discussions at its meeting in Cape Town 2014. However, it did not come to appoint where it had any recommendations beyond what was implicit in its recommendations in Toronto 2010: based on the experiences with the new (as of 2005) delegation of duties, especially the offices of Membership Secretary and the Internet Officer, it was recommended to do away with the two named offices and thus, as of the nominations and elections 2015–2020, to have four members without a portfolio (‘four further members’), a recommendation and a change to the IAHR Constitution later unanimously decided upon by the International Committee and General Assembly in Toronto 2010. This means, Prof. Jensen added, that the 2015–2020 incoming Executive Committee will have to do the same as the outgoing (cf. the remarks in the IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement, Liverpool Edition, August 2013, p.18): it has to figure out how best to deal with the duties formerly allocated to the Membership Secretary and Internet Officer, and it has to do what has been done already by the outgoing Executive Committee, namely engage the four further members actively in the ongoing work and discussions of the Executive Committee, work and discussions going on not just during the annual business meetings but throughout the year by way of electronic communication and meetings in the context of various IAHR conferences. Prof. Jensen finally mentioned that the outgoing Executive Committee had agreed that it would not be appropriate nor very helpful to come up with a set of recommendations to be discussed and maybe voted on in Erfurt 2015. It must be up to the incoming 2015–2020 Executive Committee, constituted on the basis of the changes made to the Constitution in 2010, to take up the discussion and consider if it wants to work towards a restructuring of the IAHR Executive Committee and maybe come forward in due time with a proposal to be discussed and voted upon in 2018 and 2020.

4.9 IAHR Related Publications

NVMEN, International Review for the History of Religions – as of 2011 published in six issues per annual volume, with Profs. Gregory D. Alles and Olav Hammer as current Managing Editors and Prof. Ingvild Sælid Gilhus as Reviews Editor – remains, Prof. Jensen said, the IAHR flagship journal, striking, in the opinion of the outgoing Executive Committee that “balance between amore classical historical-philological IAHR profile and a more innovative IAHR profile” which is “the hallmark of the IAHR and the way for the IAHR journal to have its own special identity”(cf. IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement, Liverpool Edition, August 2013, p. 57).

Consequently, the General Secretary was happy and proud to be able to show to the members of the International Committee a ‘dummy’ of the NVMEN 60th anniversary publication, edited by Profs. Armin W. Geertz & Tim Jensen on behalf of the IAHR Executive Committee. Though it had been the intention of Brill to have it published and ready for the Erfurt World Congress, Brill now had scheduled the publication for November 2015, but Congress participants could pre-order the book for the extraordinary price of 25 EUR.

The publication, entitled NVMEN, the Academic Study of Religion, and the IAHR – Past, Present and Prospects, Prof. Jensen continued, was based on the past and present close connection between NVMEN and the IAHR, and thus on the history and development of the study of religions reflected in both of them. The contents were constituted by a mixture of, on the one hand, reprints of past key contributions to NVMEN as well as to the IAHR, and on the other hand, new contributions that – in line with the reprints selected – look forward at the same time as they look back. The book has reprints of contributions by C.J. Bleeker, R. J. Zwi Werblowsky, A. Schimmel, U. Bianchi, E. J. Sharpe, M. Pye, A.W. Geertz & R. T. McCutcheon, and T. Jensen, and new contributions by D. Accorinti, G. Alles, C. Bochinger & J. Rüpke, G. Casadio, S. Fujiwara, R. I. J. Hackett, O. Hammer, M. Joy, M. Pye, and D. Wiebe.

The General Secretary extended thanks to past and present Brill acquisition editors as well as to Brill editor Maarten Frijswick for suggesting the publication and for their support editorial process, a process bearing witness to the excellent working relationship between the IAHR and Brill, a relationship going back to the very beginnings of the IAHR and NVMEN (and described by Prof. Giovanni Casadio in his contribution to the celebratory publication). Prof. Jensen also extended thanks to the NVMEN Managing Editors, Profs. Alles and Hammer and to Reviews Editor, Prof. Gilhus for their gigantic work and service to NVMEN and the IAHR.

It was a pleasure, Prof. Jensen continued, to be able also to announce the publication of Philosophy and the End of Sacrifice – Disengaging Ritual in Ancient India, Greece and Beyond (ed. by Peter Jackson and Anna Pya-Sjödin), the first publication in the new Equinox/IAHR book series ‘The Study of Religions in a Global Context’.

The new IAHR book series strongly supports the continued development of historical and comparative studies, as well as encouraging work that is also in other ways innovative within the academic study of religions. Prof. Jensen thanked former and current IAHR Publication Officers, Profs. Brian Bocking and Morny Joy, Equinox editors Janet Joyce and Valerie Hall, the Managing Editor Prof. Triplett, and the editorial board for their efforts, cooperation and contributions to the new IAHR book series.
It is the hope of the IAHR Executive Committee that the new IAHR/Equinox book series will assist the IAHR in furthering its aims and scholars, including of course junior scholars, from around the world and the total range of the IAHR constituency, are encouraged to use this new venue for the publication of their work.

Mentioning IAHR and IAHR-related proceedings, Prof. Jensen took the opportunity to thank Toronto 2010 IAHR World Congress Director Prof. Wiebe and his staff for preparing and publishing a digital version (uploaded at the IAHR website) already within a year after the event, and for finding the means for distributing 100 print copies to libraries around the world. As for spin-off publications from the Toronto 2010 World Congress, Prof. Jensen said that neither he nor the Publications Officer had received information about spin-off publications, and he kindly asked the members to provide whatever relevant information they had in this regard and to consult the By-Laws for rules.

Having mentioned those proceedings and spin-off publications from IAHR conferences, published between 2010–2015, of which he and the Publications Officer were actually aware, and having thanked the colleagues responsible for these publications, Prof. Jensen ended his report on IAHR publications by directing the attention of members to the fact that Nos.1–40 of the IAHR Bulletin can now be accessed by all IAHR members and the public at large at the IAHR website.

The (IAHR) Bulletin, for years part and parcel of NVMEN, served as the mouth piece of the IAHR as an organization. A separate IAHR Bulletin, to supplement what was published in NVMEN from and about the IAHR, appeared in 1986 when Michael Pye, then Secretary-General, decided to produce and publish a supplement to what he called the more “formal notices” which were intended to appear in NVMEN, “the official published organ of the IAHR” (IAHR Bulletin February 1986, p.1).

During his two terms as General Secretary (1985–1995) Prof. Pye managed to publish 33 issues of the IAHR Bulletin, and these 33 issues constitute and contribute to a highly important part and period of the IAHR’s history and identity, inter alia the concerted and strategic efforts of Prof. Pye and colleagues to build and expand a global and strong IAHR organization. Consequently, an offer from another former IAHR General Secretary, succeeding Prof. Pye in 1995 and serving also the two permitted terms until 2005, Prof. Armin W. Geertz, to have the 33 1986–1995 issues scanned so that they could enter the digital archive of the IAHR provided by the IAHR website had been accepted with great gratitude by the now outgoing General Secretary who extended thanks to Profs. Pye and Geertz, and encouraged all IAHR members to enjoy the 33 newly uploaded issues of the IAHR Bulletin at http://www.iahr.dk/bulletins.php.

4.10 Concluding Remarks

Stepping down as General Secretary, having served the IAHR for two terms, 2005–2015, Prof. Jensen looked back (and forward) as had many of his predecessors when exiting. Looking back Prof. Jensen found it safe to say that the IAHR leadership, i.e., the Executive and International Committee, as well as the General Assembly, during the two terms had continued to fulfil its mandate, namely (Constitution §1), promoting “[...]the academic study of religions through the international collaboration of all scholars whose research has a bearing on the subject”, and thus also doing its best to make of the IAHR what it proudly claims to be (cf. the website policy statement), namely the “preeminent international forum for the critical, analytical, and cross-cultural study of religions, past and present”.

The IAHR leadership had done so by way of:
– assisting the establishment and adoption of new national and regional associations and societies for the academic study of religion(s);
– adopting (in accordance with the Constitution §3b) affiliates, i.e., international associations for the study of particular areas within the academic study of religion, and thus linking them to and including them in the IAHR;
– framing the thorough amendments to the Constitution ratified during the 2010 Toronto Congress, with, inter alia, introduction of terms that signal that ‘history of religions’, also within the IAHR, is different from what it was in the 1950s;
– making other innovations to the Constitution and By-Laws meant to further geographic representation, gender balance and cultural diversity (e.g. revised Rules for the Nominating Committee);
– clarifying and tightening the academic profile of the IAHR.

As regards developments and improvements specifically pertaining to gender, Prof. Jensen noted that – the Nominating Committee 2015–2020 was constituted of three females and two males;
– the IAHR Honorary Life Membership Committee 2010–2015 was constituted of two females and one male; and that – while the IAHR Executive Committee 2005–2010 was constituted of seven males and five females (one serving as President), the 2010–2015 Executive had six females (one serving as President, another as Vice-President) and six males on board.

The 2015–2020 nominations, Prof. Jensen added, most certainly also reflect the global character of the IAHR membership and leadership as well as the (successful) efforts to help strike a gender balance.

Moreover, during this period, the IAHR Women Scholars Network was established and developed, and the new Equinox/IAHR book series ‘The Study of Religion in a Global Context’ had been introduced, with the aim of being avenue not least for younger scholars worldwide. In terms of the ‘globalization’ of the IAHR, the outgoing Executive Committee had thus continued the efforts towards globalization that can be seen as ongoing from the 1950s and speeded up and strategically developed by Profs. Michael Pye (1985–1995) and Armin W. Geertz (1995–2005).

Taking over in 2005, the outgoing General Secretary (functioning as Acting Treasurer 2008–2010), and the then-Treasurer, late Prof. Gary Lease, together with the Executive Committee initiated steps to help improve the financial situation. With the great help of the then-Publications Officer, now outgoing Treasurer, Prof. Bocking, the situation has been improved considerably.

Due to the positive change in the financial situation over the past 10 years, the IAHR had been better able to face some of the challenges pertaining to the continuous efforts to become more global. In Tokyo 2005 outgoing General Secretary Geertz (IAHR Bulletin 38, p.38), in light of the then gloomy financial situation, stated that if the situation did not improve, the IAHR would become more virtual than real, most IAHR events would most likely happen only in economically strong countries, and “once again, we would be back to the routines and power structures of yesteryears”.

Prof. Jensen agreed: financial strength or weakness is crucial to IAHR’s capacity for global outreach, and the importance of the improvement of the financial situation cannot be overestimated. Thanks to the improved finances the IAHR Executive Committee, Prof. Jensen said, had been able to put ‘globalization’ to work, e.g. by way of giving considerable travel grants to help scholars from around the world participate in the IAHR business meetings, congresses, and conferences.

Last but not least Prof. Jensen wanted to stress that the outgoing Executive Committee, continuing the work of the 2005–2010 Executive, had worked assiduously to guard the academic respectability of the IAHR by clarifying the commitment to academic objectives. As he himself had stated in his statement for candidacy for the position of General Secretary in 2005: “‘global’ in the language of the IAHR, is not the same as ‘ecumenical’.”

Lasting traces of these efforts are found in the 2010 addition to the first article of the IAHR Constitution, but the tightening up of the academic profile can also be seen from the revised rules as to the obligation to see to it that the academic programs of IAHR Special and Regional Conferences are in line with the stated aims of the IAHR.

The outgoing Executive Committee had thus, in the opinion of Prof. Jensen, done its best to expand the IAHR while at the same time trying to secure that the ‘identity’ of the IAHR continued to reflect what was arguably first formulated more explicitly by General Secretary Zwi Werblowsky in his famous Marburg 1960 statement:

If the IAHR has any raison d’être it is by reason of a division of labor which makes the Organization the responsible organ and international meeting ground for those scholars who wish to serve the cause of Religionswissenschaft in its strict sense. (NVMEN 7, p. 220)

Prof. Jensen stressed that he wanted to quote these words because he, as is evident e.g. from the coming NVMEN 60th anniversary publication, with many others consider the Marburg 1960 Congress and the late Zwi Werblowsky’s statement a cornerstone in the building of an institutional consensus as to the perspective and ethos of the IAHR.

But, headed, he also quoted these words to signal that it had been a privilege and honor – standing on the shoulders of great(er) scholars and former general secretaries like, to mention but a few of the more recent ones, Zwi Werblowsky, Michael Pye and Armin W. Geertz – to serve the IAHR, trying to further develop the IAHR along the lines staked out by the Werblowsky statement.

Stepping down as General Secretary, Prof. Jensen wanted to thank all his colleagues in the outgoing Executive Committee for their hard work, commitment, and support. A special thank you was extended to the outgoing President, Prof. Hackett, as well as to the outgoing Treasurer, Prof. Bocking.

The President, Prof. Hackett thanked the General Secretary for his report and opened the floor for questions and comments, to the oral as well as written report. There were no questions nor comments. The President then expressed her gratitude to the General Secretary for his devotion and dedicated work for the IAHR and asked that the report be formally adopted. The report was adopted with applause.

5 Report by the Treasurer

With reference to his full and written report in the IAHR BULLETIN Number 40, Erfurt Congress Edition, August 2015, pp. 78–85, the Treasurer, Prof. Brian Bocking displayed the overview rendered below (cf. p. 84 in the detailed written report) of the IAHR accounts and briefly commented as follows:

Income: there are two reliable sources of income: 1) from Brill for NVMEN (currently 10,295 EUR p.a.), and 2) member and affiliate associations’ annual dues (now c. 10,000 USD p.a.). CIPSH no longer offers any financial support.

The Treasurer added a few notes to the above. 1) Payments from Brill in respect of each issue of the IAHR journal NVMEN constitute the major guaranteed source of income for the IAHR, with 65,058 EUR provided since 2010. Payments are adjusted upwards annually according to the annual Netherlands Euro inflation rate. 2) Annual dues fulfil two main and important functions. One is symbolic, namely to renew the membership of each constituent member and affiliate association each year. (Failure to pay dues over several years, and despite reminders, means an association may eventually be declared lapsed.) The other function is to augment IAHR funds through a small levy on the worldwide membership. In general, member associations pay annual dues promptly, to the great happiness of your treasurer, although a few still need reminders. The annual levy was set at 1 USD per individual member several decades ago and had lost perhaps 80% in value over the years. Consequently, in 2013 the Executive raised the annual dues for associations of between 34 and 499 members to 3 USD per member and the dues for associations with 500+ members (there are currently only two; Japan and USA) to 2,000 USD. Smaller associations of fewer than 34 members pay the unchanged minimum rate of 100 USD. The EC additionally agreed to review the rate at least every five years, i.e., by 2018.

The new dues rates have made a significant difference to dues income. 11,139 USD (including some arrears) were collected in 2014 compared with an average of 4,800 USD in each of the four previous years.

As for the CIPSH, the IAHR Endowment Fund and the IAHR African Trust Fund, he referred to what had already been reported by the General Secretary and to the details provided by his written report.

Expenditure: Average annual expenditure during the period 2010–2014, including expenditure on the 2010 Toronto Congress, has averaged 17,000 USD.

The Treasurer added a few words on major expenditures: a) Conference support: Since 2010, the IAHR has provided financial support to IAHR conferences including 3,000 USD to the Toronto World Congress as well as sums of 1,000–2,000 USD to AASR Conferences in Kenya (2012) and Cape Town (2014) and SSEASR conferences in Bhutan (2011) and Manila (2013). Conference support in the reporting period 2010–2014 has thus averaged 8,000 USD p.a., including the IAHR subvention to the Toronto Congress in 2010. In non-Congress years conference support has averaged 1,700 USD. Regarding the 2015 Erfurt Congress, the Executive Committee agreed in 2013 to make a subvention in Euro to the Erfurt Congress equivalent to 15,000 USD plus the IAHR Endowment amount of 8,695 USD, a total of 23,695 USD.

b) Executive Committee expenses: Crucial to the IAHR’s effectiveness is the annual Executive Committee meeting which generally lasts two days and is held in a different part of the world each year, in connection with an IAHR conference which, in most cases, EC members also attend. In practice, most of the costs of EC meetings in the period 2010–2014 have been met by members from their own resources or their university travel funds. For example, in 2013 eleven members met in Cork at a total cost of 3,535 USD (average per person subsidy 320 USD) while in 2014 the IAHR contributed less than 5,000 USD in total towards EC members’ travel and accommodation for the meeting in Cape Town. Providing EC members with full funding for attendance at EC meetings would have required a significant additional commitment (perhaps 12,000 USD annually) from the IAHR budget.
Since the real cost of EC members’ travel and subsistence is thus much more than the IAHR subsidies, the low figure thus hides/reveals the continuing ‘hidden subsidy’ to IAHR from EC members’ own resources. c) Publications and web expenses: Payments include the costs during 2010 of producing printed Congress proceedings from both Durban (2000) and Tokyo (2005). Other payments are largely for webmaster assistance with the iahr.dk website.

Bank Accounts and exchange rates: The IAHR currently maintains two bank accounts: an EUR account (balance May 31, 2015: 55,418EUR) and a USD account (balance May 31, 2015: 25,698USD). The IAHR accounts are traditionally reported in US dollars, so the recent sharp rise of the dollar/fall of the Euro has ‘cost’ IAHR 4,633USD in the period 2010–2014 and may ‘cost’ a further 5,000 USD in 2015 alone. However, this has no practical effect so long as the IAHR has both USD and Euro bank accounts on which to draw as appropriate. It should however be noted that of the IAHR’s 24,000 USD annual income only 7,000 USD or so is actually received in dollars, so any expenditure above that amount in any year from the USD account will deplete the dollar reserves.

Prof. Bocking in ending his report extended thanks to all those treasurers and other officers of IAHR member associations who have over the last five years ensured payment of annual dues in the right amount, at the right time, and to the right IAHR account. Finally, Prof. Bocking thanked the President, General Secretary and all of his colleagues on the 2010–2015 Executive Committee for their support, encouragement and patience with regard to his efforts as Treasurer during the period.

The President, Prof. Hackett thanked the Treasurer for his clear report and opened the floor for questions and comments, to the oral as well as written report. There were no questions nor comments. The President then thanked the Treasurer for his excellent and dedicated work for the IAHR and asked that the report be formally adopted. The report was adopted with applause.

6 Additional Matters of Report by the Executive Committee

The General Secretary, with reference to the meeting of Sunday, August 23, 2015 in Erfurt of the outgoing Executive Committee, reported that the Executive Committee, in line with an earlier decision taken, did not want to bind the hands of the incoming 2015–2020 Executive Committee in financial affairs and matters of principle. Consequently, it had decided to hand over several matters for discussion and decision to the incoming Executive, inter alia, a proposal to discuss whether the IAHR ought to adopt a policy on diversity, a request for readmission by the Nigerian association, and the future relationship to CIPSH.

He also reported that while in Erfurt he had received the good news that the (re-)establishment of an Israeli association for the study of religion was now planned to happen during a meeting to be held in October 2015. Prof. Jensen was very pleased with this, adding that the Israel society had been one of the oldest IAHR member societies, and that it would have been a loss to the IAHR if there were no Israel society. He thanked Shai Feraro and other Israel colleagues for taking this initiative, a most apt way to honor the now late Zwi Werblowsky.

Prof. Jensen, also while in Erfurt, had received a draft proposal for a constitution for a new Cuban association, and he expressed his hope that a Cuban association might be (re-)established in connection with a conference in Havana, Cuba, July 2016.

The President, Prof. Hackett opened the floor for questions and comments. There were no questions nor comments.

7 Election of the 2015–2020 Executive Committee

With reference to his email message of May 26, 2015 to members and officers of the IAHR International Committee and member associations and affiliates, as well as to the 2015–2020 nominees and nominating committee, in which the General Secretary announced that he had decided, in view of the fact that he was himself up for election, to hand over all further handling of the elections, including the soliciting of statements of candidacy (to be published on the IAHR website and in the IAHR Bulletin) from the named nominees, to the IAHR Treasurer, Prof. Bocking, Prof. Jensen handed responsibility of this matter over to the President and the Treasurer to conduct the election of the 2015–2020 Executive Committee.

Prof. Hackett, presiding, with reference to the General Secretary’s 2010–2015 written report (IAHR BULLETIN Number 40, Erfurt Congress Edition, August 2015, pp.52–53) and the series of email announcements sent to the International Committee and member associations and affiliates, as well as to the 2015–2020 nominees and to the 2015–2020 nominating committee chaired by Prof. Peter Antes, ascertained that all the IAHR rules and procedures for nominations (including alternative nominations) and elections of the Executive Committee, including the announcements of nominations and the deadline for alternative nominations, had been attended to. On May26, 2015, the final and total nominations had been announced in an email to the same recipients and thus (hopefully) also to the IAHR membership at large. Having thus ascertained that the relevant rules and procedures had been followed, she asked the Treasurer, Prof. Bocking to execute the elections. Prof. Bocking noted that in an election not all candidates could be successful and he congratulated, on behalf of the delegates present and the whole IAHR membership, all of the nominees; being nominated was already an acknowledgment within the IAHR of a candidate’s capability,
With the help of a PowerPoint presentation Prof. Bocking explained the steps of the procedure and the details of the elections proper. Voting would start with the election of officers with designated duties, in the order listed in the Constitution, beginning with the Presidency. This would be followed by the election of the four further members. Voting would take place sequentially by secret ballot in the case of contested posts, while candidates for non-contested posts would be declared ‘elected unopposed’. Each voting representative would be provided with a set of ballot papers in different colors, the first for voting for (one) President, then for voting for (two) Vice-Presidents, then voting for (one) General Secretary, and finally voting for the four further members (all other posts being uncontested). Prof. Bocking also explained the procedures in case of tied votes, and the role of the President, who would not vote except in the case of a tie, where the President would exercise her casting vote as necessary. He also explained the function and assistance of Prof. Michael Pye as ‘returning officer’ and of the two outgoing Vice-Presidents (neither standing for election), Profs. Gilhus and Tayob, as tellers.

Before the act of voting, the nominees for contested posts present were given the opportunity to deliver a three-minute oral statement, while candidates for non-contested posts took a minute briefly to introduce themselves to the electorate. At the same time the candidate’s name and the position she or he had been nominated for was displayed by way of a PowerPoint presentation. Absent nominees for contested posts had been invited to send a video presentation although that offer was not taken up; in the case of an absent candidate, the PowerPoint also showed a photograph of the candidate. Thus each nominee present, with the exception of Prof. Peter Beyer who refrained from giving an oral statement, delivered a brief statement. Following this, the Treasurer announced a coffee break during which the members with a voting right could collect and sign for their voting papers. After the break the voting procedure was set in motion as announced, and following each round of voting for each position, Prof. Michael Pye reported the result to the President and then formally announced the result on behalf of the IAHR. The outcome of the elections was as follows:

President (one position)
Peter Beyer, Canada (8 votes)
Tim Jensen, Denmark (58)
(spoiled/incomplete ballot papers: 1)

Vice-Presidents (two positions)
Veikko Anttonen, Finland (38)
Anne Kubai, Sweden (33)
Mar Marcos, Spain (61)

General Secretary (one position)
Afe Adogame, United Kingdom (35)
Jenny Berglund, Sweden (32)

Deputy General Secretary
Ann Taves, USA (elected unopposed)

Treasurer
Philippe Bornet, Switzerland (elected unopposed)

Deputy Treasurer
Marion Maddox, Australia (elected unopposed)

Publications Officer
Satoko Fujiwara, Japan (elected unopposed)

Further Members (four positions)
Milda Alisauskiene, Lithuania (43)
Chae Young Kim, South Korea (39)
Amarjiva Lochan, India (48)
Marianna Shakhnovich, Russia (24)
David Thurfjell, Sweden (42)
Katja Triplett, Germany (53)
Frank Usarski, Brazil (18)

The following were thus duly elected to the IAHR Executive Committee 2015–2020:
President: Tim Jensen
Vice-Presidents: Veikko Anttonen, Mar Marcos
General Secretary*: Afe Adogame
Deputy General Secretary: Ann Taves
Treasurer: Philippe Bornet
Deputy Treasurer: Marion Maddox
Publications Officer: Satoko Fujiwara
Four Further Members: Milda Alisauskiene, Amarjiva Lochan, David Thurfjell, Katja Triplett
*From 2015 onwards ‘Secretary General’; see (9) below

The President, Prof. Hackett congratulated all the elected nominees, and thanked all the nominees not elected for their willingness to serve the IAHR.
Prof. Jensen, resuming his duty as General Secretary, thanked the two Vice Presidents, Profs. Gilhus and Tayob, the elections officer, Prof. Pye, the Treasurer Prof. Bocking as well as the members of the Nominating Committee, Profs. Maya Burger, Gerrie ter Haar, Sylvia Marcos, Peter Antes (chair), and Luther H. Martin for their service to the IAHR.

8 Proposal for a Change of Name for the IAHR

With reference to
a) the proposal for a change of name discussed by the International Committee in Liverpool 2013 (cf. the relevant section of the Minutes from the International Committee Meeting in Liverpool 2013, IAHR BULLETIN 40, Erfurt Congress Edition, August 2015, pp. 30–33),
b) the IAHR Executive Committee’s effort to encourage the IAHR members to discuss the revised proposal from Profs. Martin and Wiebe (see the IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement, November 2013, p.3 ),
c) the decision to thus have a (in regard to this proposal) decisive discussion by the International Committee in Erfurt in order for it (in case of are commendation for a change of name) to bring the matter before the General Assembly, and
d) the fact that the General Secretary had not received any other proposals for a change of name from any member association the General Secretary invited Profs. Martin and Wiebe to ever so briefly state the case for the revised proposal to change the name for the Association to the International Association for Historical and Scientific Studies of Religion (IAHSSR).

When Profs. Wiebe and Martin had done so, Prof. Jensen thanked them and opened the floor for questions and comments. He also reminded the committee members that a proposal for another name than the one proposed by Profs. Martin and Wiebe had not been filed to him and the Executive Committee, and that it was thus only the name proposed by Profs. Martin and Wiebe and not any other possible name that was up for discussion and voting.

Prof. Giovanni Casadio (Italy) read aloud a written statement which he afterwards has been kind enough to hand over to the General Secretary for him to include it in the minutes. The statement read:

CHANGE OF NAME? No, thanks.

1. The only viable alternative name to History of Religions is Study of Religion(s), which is the denomination (official or in English translation) of the majority (29 vs. 8) of the IAHR member associations and societies. The term “study” is, however, too generic and amorphous, as was already noted in Paris by the IAHR International Committee in 1992, and is now recognised even by the supporters of the name change. The alternative name proposed at that time, “academic study” (which is used in the denomination of two national associations), was also discarded later on for being too inclusive, as it comprises the various philosophies and theologies of religion(s), which are studied and taught in an academic milieu yet are not historico-empirical and critical disciplines. See Doc. 1.

2. The denomination Historical and Scientific Studies of Religions that is now proposed by scholars (who do not represent any national or regional associations, but only themselves, and this is a notable deterioration with respect to Rome 1990 and Mexico 1995, where the motion to change the name was presented by the British Association), is odd and awkward. Odd, because history itself is a science, and there is no apparent opposition between history and science; awkward, because it is redundant and equivocal, with regard to the adoption of two plural (“studies” and “religions”) which violate both the rules of English usage and the traditional epistemology of the study of religions (= religious studies).

3. Science is appropriate in German (Wissenschaft) and – with a notable amount of ambiguity – in French, Spanish, and Italian. In English it is not appropriate to define a branch of humanistic and cultural studies.

4. Martin and Wiebe mean “Scientific” as a study which uses cognitive science, evolution theory, biology, neuroscience as methods or approaches, but the name of a scholars’ association should describe the field of study, rather than supply an arbitrary choice of methods or approach.

5. History (historical), instead, is not the definiens of a method. History (of religions) is a field and a discipline (\textit{historia rerum gestarum}) which is the traditional rendering in French, Italian, Spanish, Swedish, Norwegian, Romanian, Turkish, Portuguese, and Korean of the (German) original name of the discipline, \textit{Religionswissenschaft}, as formulated by the founding father of the field as an academic area, F. Max Müller: See Doc. 2. The preservation of the denominator HISTORY in the name of not only several South and North European societies but also in few – but very representative – Asiatic (Turkey and South Korea) and South American (Brazil: an immense country) associations is by itself very telling.

6. Like Religion, or Hinduism, the Scientific (a quite controversial definer from the emic point of view: see Doc. 3b) Study of Religion is already there. It does not need to be invented. It has already its own tradition and its own association, the \textit{Society for the Scientific Study of Religion} (SSSR), which was founded just one year before our association. See Doc. 3a. The members come prevalently from the so-called social sciences (sociology, psychology, political science, economics) and have their flagship review, the \textit{Journal for the Scientific Study of Religion}, which is, by the way, quite different from NUMEN in its contents and its aims. See Doc. 3 a.

7. Both the Social Science of Religion and the Cognitive Science of Religion (notice, in this case, the usage of the singular for both the discipline and the field) have their own highly structured associations and organs, with a significant mutually enriching interplay with the IAHR and its national and regional affiliated societies. See Doc. 4. An interplay and a cooperation which – in the view of the Italian association that I represent, a view shared by the French, the Romanian and the Swiss francophone societies – should not imply a loss of our identity, according to the explicit and implicit intentions of the founders of the association, the Dutch G. van der Leeuw and C. J. Bleeker, the Italian R. Pettazzoni, and the Romanian M. Eliade.

8. History can be practiced—in compliance with the basic rules of philology—utilising approaches based on methods developed within the field of the social (homo sapiens is essentially a \textit{zoon politikon} according to Aristotle) and natural (homo sapiens is primarily an animal) sciences. But history is by itself a full-fledged multifaceted “science” (in the sense of a non-confessional empiric study) with its own widely articulated methodology (which is not limited to the study of written documents) and does not require further qualifications.

Prof. Casadio ended up stressing that he was speaking on behalf of the Italian association. Prof. Ingvild Sælid Gilhus also commented on the proposal, saying that she was in favor of the proposed change and that she liked the insertion of ‘Historical’ in the revised proposal, adding that she found the acronym a bit problematic, though.

Prof. Takeshi Kimura, one of two delegates of the JARS, conveyed the concern of JARS board members: in case the proposal to change the name of the IAHR was adopted by the International Committee and thereafter put to the General Assembly for the final decision by way of a vote in favor or against a new name, the location of the World Congress and thus of the General Assembly might be decisive. The majority of participants in the General Assembly held this year in Erfurt most likely would be from Europe, not least from Germany. This might be seen as a rather parochial way for an international association to take such an important decision. The IAHR and the International Committee ought to consider this before taking a decision.

The General Secretary thanked the speakers for the comments and asked if anybody else wanted to comment on the proposal. Since this was not the case, he proposed that a vote by a show of hands be taken, not least because it was agreed upon in Liverpool 2013 that the discussion of the International Committee on the proposal for a change of name was undertaken with regard to a possible recommendation to the General Assembly to vote on a (possible) recommendation from the International Committee that the IAHR change its name and thus the constitution.

Prof. Hackett then asked for a vote by a show of hands. The vote had the following result:

– In favor of the proposal to change the name for the Association to the International Association for Historical and Scientific Studies of Religion (IAHSSR): 15
– Against: 40
– Abstentions: 9

The proposal to change the name for the Association to the International Association for Historical and Scientific Studies of Religion (IAHSSR) was thus rejected by a majority of the members of the International Committee and thus would not be brought before the General Assembly.

9 Proposal for Changing [IAHR] ‘General Secretary’ to ‘Secretary General’

The proposal submitted by the Executive Committee (and to be taken to the General Assembly for a final decision if accepted by the International Committee because it implied a change to the Constitution) was, the General Secretary explained, caused by worries expressed by some members that ‘General Secretary’ in some contexts did not signal the same importance, weight or authority as did ‘Secretary General’. Prof. Jensen added that if the proposal submitted won the favor of the International Committee, the recommendation to the General Assembly ought to mention that a change of name to Secretary General entailed a change of name from ‘Deputy General Secretary’ to ‘Deputy Secretary General’. Prof. Hackett opened the floor for questions and comments. There were no comments or questions, and she therefore asked for a show of hands. An overwhelming majority was in favor of the proposal.

The proposal was thus to be brought before the General Assembly for it to take the decision that implied a change to the constitution.

10 Recommendation of new members and affiliates

The General Secretary, with the help of a PowerPoint presentation, and with reference to his report in the IAHR BULLETIN 40, Erfurt Congress Edition, August 2015, p. 60, reported that the International Committee Meeting at its meeting in Liverpool, September 4, 2013, unanimously agreed, upon the recommendation of the Executive Committee to recommend to the IAHR General Assembly (meeting in Erfurt August 29, 2015) that it adopt as members (cf. the Constitution §3A) the following national associations:

– Association belge pour l’étude des religions/Belgische Associatie voor de Studie van Religies (BABEL), Belgium;
– Irish Society for the Academic Study of Religions (ISASR), Ireland;
– Lithuanian Society for the Study of Religions (LSSR), Lithuania;

as well as the following regional association:

– Asociacion de Cientistas Sociales de la Religion del Mercosur (ACSRM), South America.
In addition to this, he reported that the Executive Committee had received (March 2, 2015) an application for membership from the Philippine Association for the Study of Culture, History and Religion (PASCHR), and that the Executive Committee at its meeting in Erfurt, Sunday August 23, 2015, unanimously agreed to recommend to the International Committee that they recommend that the association become a new member of the IAHR at the General Assembly.

Prof. Hackett invited PASCHR President, Prof. Esmeralda Sanchez, to say a few words if she so wanted, and Prof. Sanchez rose and expressed the wish of the PASCHR to be adopted as a member of the IAHR.

Prof. Hackett then asked for a show of hands in favor of or against the recommendation of the adoption of each of the abovementioned applicants. In each case there was an overwhelming or unanimous majority in favor and the recommendation of the membership of each applicant was accompanied by applause.

The General Secretary, finally, reported that the IAHR Executive Committee had, upon the receipt (August 1, 2014) of an application with the relevant information attached, decided to recommend to the International Committee that it recommends to the General Assembly meeting in Erfurt to adopt as an affiliate (cf. the Constitution §3B) the Society for Ancient Mediterranean Religions (SAMR).

Prof. Hackett asked for a show of hands in favor or against the recommendation of the adoption of the applicant as an affiliate to the IAHR. An overwhelming majority was in favor and the recommendation was accompanied by applause.

11 Recommendation of Honorary Life Members

The General Secretary, having referred to the rules in regard to the procedure for Proposals for Honorary Life Membership, asked Prof. Armin W. Geertz, the chair of the 2010–2015 Honorary Life Membership Advisory Committee to present to the International Committee their proposals for Honorary Life Membership.

Prof. Geertz took the floor and read the letter of nominations that he – on behalf of the Honorary Life Membership Advisory Committee, consisting of the three honorary life members of the IAHR, namely, Prof. Giulia S. Gasparro (Messina), Dr. Yolótl Gonzales Torres (Mexico City) and Prof. Armin W. Geertz (Aarhus) – had submitted to the General Secretary in accordance with the relevant rules on July 20, 2015.

The Honorary Life Membership Advisory Committee proposed that IAHR Honorary Life Membership be conferred on the following three senior scholars:

– Prof. Giovanni Casadio, Salerno, Italy;
– Prof. Rosalind I. J. Hackett, Knoxville, USA; and
– Prof. Susumu Shimazono, Tokyo, Japan.

The proposals were unanimously supported by the International Committee, and IAHR Honorary Life Membership conferred upon each of the mentioned senior scholars by applause. The letter sent and read by Prof. Geertz is rendered in full below:

City) and Prof. Armin W. Geertz (Aarhus) was constituted in accordance with the procedural provisions, and we have the privilege of reporting as follows. In accordance with the rules, two IAHR constituent member societies and one affiliate responded to the General Secretary Prof. Tim Jensen’s call for proposals, suggesting one name each, and the Executive Committee suggesting three names. These names were then forwarded to the Advisory Committee, which was asked to choose up to three names. According to the rules, “honorary life memberships can be conferred on senior scholars who have distinguished themselves through life-long service to the history of religions through their scholarship, regular participation in IAHR conferences, service as national or international officers and/or other outstanding contributions.” We were conscious of various criteria such as academic achievement and reputation, global balance and gender balance, contribution to the work of the IAHR, but found that it was not possible to take all relevant criteria into account simultaneously and equally. It was necessary to establish a shorter list from within the slightly larger pool of eminently suitable persons and after considerable thought, the committee reached unanimous agreement that the following three persons (alphabetical order) should be put forward to the International Committee for decision:

Prof. Giovanni Casadio, Salerno, Italy
Prof. Rosalind I. J. Hackett, Knoxville, USA
Prof. Susumu Shimazono, Tokyo, Japan

Giovanni Casadio is Professor of History of Religions at the University of Salerno, Italy. He has authored some 150 publications in Italian, English, French, German, Spanish, and Romanian related to Greek religion (Dionysus, Orphism, Plato, Plutarch), Near Eastern religions (Iran, Ugarit, Mesopotamia), ancient Christianity and syncretism (Gnosticism, Manichaeism), woman and gender studies, and to the history of the history of religions. Prof. Casadio is founder and editor of the series Bibliotecadi Studi Religiosi and Biblioteca di Storia delle Religioni and Humanitas, and he is a member of the advisory board of several international journals. He has served for several years on the board of the Società italiana di storia delle religioni (SISR), one of the most active member associations within the IAHR, past and present. Prof. Casadio likewise has served as a member and Publications Officer (2000–2007) on the Executive Committee of the EASR. He is currently serving the SISR as Secretary and the EASR as Vice-President. He has been and still is one of the most steadfast and active supporters of the IAHR and well versed in the history of the association.

Rosalind I. J. Hackett is Professor of Religious Studies at the Department of Religious Studies, University of Tennessee in Knoxville since 1986, and is an adjunct Professor in Anthropology and faculty associate at the Howard H. Baker, J r. Center for Public Policy. She was a Distinguished Professor in the Humanities from 2003–2008. She taught in Nigerian universities from 1975–1983, while conducting fieldwork. As a specialist on the religions of Africa, she has published widely on new religious movements in Africa, religious pluralism, art, gender, the media, and religion in relation to human rights. She recently published on proselytization, religion and conflict, global Pentecostalism and Evangelicalism, and is currently working on sound in and as religion. Prof. Hackett has been very active organizationally. Within the IAHR, she has served as Deputy Secretary-General (1995–2000), Vice President (2000–2005) and two terms as President (2005–2015). She was Program Chair of the XVIIth IAHR World Congress in Durban (2000) and active in coordinating panels at many IAHR conferences (1995–2015). She was Treasurer and founding member of the African Association for the Study of Religions (1993–1998) and Ex-officio member (1998–2005). Prof. Hackett currently serves as Vice President of the International Council for Philosophy and Susumu Shimazono is Emeritus Professor of the University of Tokyo Graduate School of Humanities and Sociology, Department of Religious Studies. His many research fields include religions in modern Japan, comparative study of contemporary religions, new religions, death and life studies, public philosophy and religion, and comparative study of civilizations. He has produced a large number of publications, some of which are available in English as well. He has served as President of the Japanese Association for Religious Studies (2002–2005 and 2008–2011). He served as Congress Director of the 2005 Tokyo Congress of the IAHR, the largest world congress in its history, the success of which owes to his initiative.

12 Proposed Changes to the Constitution Caused by Transfer of Bank Account

The Treasurer, Prof. Bocking, took the floor and used a PowerPoint presentation to put forward the proposal and to provide the background for the proposal. The background, he explained, is the following:

Banks are subject to increasing restrictions on who may open a bank account, and where. The IAHR bank accounts have to be transferred to the new Treasurer’s location, Switzerland. A basic requirement for opening a corporate (IAHR-type) bank account in Switzerland is that Switzerland must be the ‘primary location’ of the IAHR.

This condition is met if:

(a) The IAHR Constitution does not state that the IAHR is located outside Switzerland;
(b) the Constitution states that ‘the primary location of the IAHR is the official address of the Treasurer’; and
(c) the Treasurer is resident in Switzerland.

In order to comply with these requirements and thus facilitate a (hopefully) smooth transfer of the accounts, the Executive Committee proposed the following changes to the Constitution:

– A new sentence to be added at the end of Article 3A of the IAHR Constitution to read as follows: “The primary location of the IAHR is the official address of the IAHR Treasurer”
– The clause in Article 1 of the IAHR Constitution which reads “and is legally registered in the Hague, the Netherlands” to be moved from the IAHR Constitution into a new section VI within the IAHR’s Rules of Procedure and the current (final) section VI to be renumbered section VII.

Consequently, the Treasurer, on behalf of the Executive Committee, recommended that the Constitution §§ 1 and 3 be amended so that it reads as follows:

“The International Association for the History of Religions (abbreviated from its English title to IAHR), was founded in September 1950 on the occasion of the VIIth International History of Religions Congress. The IAHR is a nonprofit worldwide organization which has as its objective the promotion of the academic study of religions through the international collaboration of all scholars whose research has a bearing on the subject. The IAHR is not a forum for confessional, apologetical, or other similar concerns.”

§ 3:
“The IAHR is constituted by national and regional member societies and associations for the historical, social and comparative study of religions. These are such bodies as are now members and such as have been, upon application, recommended for membership by the Executive Committee, pending recommendation by the International Committee (see below), and admission by the General Assembly at a future quinquennial Congress. The primary location of the IAHR is the official address of the IAHR Treasurer.”

Furthermore, it was recommended that the Rules of Procedure were amended to read as follows following Rule 20d (under VII. the change is only of numbering; formerly 21, now 22):

VI. Legal Registration of the IAHR
Rule 21. Legal Registration
The IAHR is legally registered in the Hague, the Netherlands.

VII. Adoption, Amendment and Suspension of the Rules of Procedure
Rule 22. Adoption
The International Committee shall adopt the Rules of Procedure by a two-thirds majority of members present and voting.

Each and all of the proposals were unanimously agreed upon by a show of hands and thus to be brought before the General Assembly for it to take the final decision.

13 Any other business

There was no other business.
Prof. Hackett closed the meeting, extending thanks to all the members of the International Committee for their active participation.

Minutes prepared by the then General Secretary, Prof. Tim Jensen, assisted by notes taken by the then Deputy General Secretary, Prof. Mar Marcos, and by comments from former Treasurer, Prof. Brian Bocking
IV. IAHR Acting Secretary General’s Report, 2015-2018

Initially, it is my sad duty to announce that IAHR Honorary Life Member, Professor Jonathan Z. Smith passed away December 30, 2017. An obituary will be published in NVMEN.

1. Executive Committee and International Committee: Meetings, Plans for Meetings, and Communications

1.1. Meetings
According to the IAHR Constitution Article 5, the IAHR Executive Committee shall meet at least once a year. In addition to its Incoming Meeting in Erfurt, 2015, the IAHR Executive Committee held annual meetings in Helsinki, June 26-27, 2016, and in Ho Chi Minh City July 8-9, 2017. The meetings took place in connection with an IAHR Regional or Special Conference. The Executive Committee meets again in Bern in connection with the EASR/IAHR Regional Conference June 2018.

1.2. Meeting Locations
The Executive Committee has been aware of the need to consider how best to implement the IAHR principle of rotation, thus trying to move the Executive as well as International Committee meetings around the world. The Executive Committee first investigated the possibility of holding the 2018 Executive and International Committee meetings in Brazil, by asking ABHR (the Brazilian Association for the History of Religion) to consider hosting an IAHR Special Conference. Despite the efforts of the IAHR President and Secretary General, the idea proved unrealistic at this point. In December 2016, the Executive Committee decided to hold the 2018 meetings in Bern, where SGR/SSSR (Schweizerische Gesellschaft für Religionswissenschaft/Société Suisse pour la Science des Religions) would hold an IAHR Regional Conference, which is, at the same time, the annual conference of the EASR. However, in order to achieve a better regional balance of attendees for the International Committee meeting, the Executive later decided to invite those representatives outside Europe who are unable to leave their countries to participate via internet video conferencing. The Executive also decided to hold the 2017 Executive Committee meeting in Ho Chi Minh City, in the context of the 7th SSEASR Conference, which was also an IAHR Regional Conference.

On behalf of the Executive Committee allow me to take this opportunity to thank the Helsinki and the Ho Chi Minh City organizing committees for hosting our Executive Committee meetings. The Executive is also sincerely grateful to the SGR/SSSR and the EASR for their readiness to host the International Committee meeting 2018. The Executive is well aware of the extra planning and efforts it takes to accommodate such a meeting.

1.3. Communications: Newsletters, Email letters of information, and IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement
Following Erfurt 2015, email letters of information and an IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement were sent to the officers of the IAHR member associations/societies and affiliates, and several postings have also been uploaded at the IAHR website:
- January 6, 2016, an invitation for bids for hosting the IAHR Quinquennial World Congress in 2020 was emailed to all officers.
- November 27, 2016, an email message announced that the Executive Committee’s decision to gratefully accept the bid from the New Zealand Association for the Study of Religions (NZASR) to host the IAHR XXII World Congress 2020 in Dunedin, Aotearoa, New Zealand.
December 1, 2016, the Open Access version of the Erfurt Congress Proceedings was published by De Gruyter. The news was posted to the IAHR website.

June 7, 2017, an email message from Deputy Secretary General was sent to announce the resignation of the Secretary General on June 5.

The IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement, August 2017 was sent by email to all key officers in all IAHR member associations and societies as well as to affiliates, to Honorary Life Members and to the IAHR Executive Committee, and uploaded at the IAHR website.

The IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement included announcements and information about:

- the appointment of Publications Officer Satoko Fujiwara as the IAHR Acting Secretary General during the Executive Committee meeting in Ho Chi Minh City, July 8;
- call for suggestions regarding Honorary Life Membership from the IAHR constituent member associations;
- the developments of the IAHR XXII World Congress 2020 in Dunedin;
- reference to an EASR-IAHR joint-statement on the European Academy of Religion;
- the announcements of IAHR Special and Regional Conferences (EASR Leuven 2017; AASR Lusaka 2018);
- a report on the outcomes of the World Humanities Conference in Liège, Belgium during August 6-12, 2017, co-organized by UNESCO, the International Council for Philosophy and Human Sciences (CIPSH) and the World Humanities Conference-Liège 2017 Foundation.

The Supplement also includes the provisional Minutes from the IAHR International Committee meeting, as well as from the IAHR General Assembly, Erfurt 2015.

December 3, 2017, an email message to remind all key officers in all IAHR member associations and societies as well as in affiliates of the 2018 IAHR International Committee meeting in Bern

In addition to the communication above, the IAHR Treasurer, Prof. Philippe Bornet, has sent annual notifications of annual membership fees to the relevant officers of member associations and affiliates.

2. IAHR Congresses and Conferences

2.1. IAHR XXI Quinquennial World Congress, Erfurt, Germany 2015, August 23-29

Thanks to the highly efficient editing work of Congress Directors, Prof. Dr. Christoph Bochinger and Prof. Dr. Jörg Rüpke, and Congress Coordinator, Dr. Elisabeth Begemann, Dynamics of Religion: Past and Present, Proceedings of the XXI World Congress of the International Association for the History of Religions was available in an electronic web version as well as a print version about one year after the Congress took place. The Proceedings include the academic program, the IAHR formal meetings and minutes, the Congress committees, the Congress Directors’ and Administrator’s reports, keynote papers, and abstracts. The Congress Directors’ report includes the result of the post-congress survey, according to which most respondents declared themselves satisfied (42%) or very satisfied (23%) with the Congress.

The IAHR Bulletin 40, Erfurt Congress Edition, August 2015, a print edition of which was distributed to participants during the Erfurt Congress, is also available to all IAHR members on the IAHR website.

The Minutes from the meetings of the IAHR International Committee and General Assembly in Erfurt has been sent to all IAHR officers with the IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement.
August 2017, and has also been made available at the IAHR website.

Allow me to extend heartfelt thanks to Congress Directors and Coordinator for their efforts and hard work. The IAHR Executive Committee is most grateful for the service offered to the IAHR, in the years before the 2015 Congress, during the Congress, and after the Congress.

2.2. IAHR XXII Quinquennial World Congress, Dunedin, New Zealand, August 23-29, 2020

The preparation for the 2020 World Congress began before the Erfurt World Congress with the invitation for “letters of interest” for hosting the World Congress included in the IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement, September 2014. The then Executive Committee wanted to make the process less burdensome for applicants by first issuing an invitation for letters of interest rather than for a full-fledged and time consuming bid for application. The current Executive Committee subsequently issued an invitation for bids for hosting the World Congress via email to all IAHR member associations/societies and affiliates on January 5th, 2016, and also made it available on the IAHR website.

The Executive Committee received two notices of interest, one from the New Zealand Association for the Study of Religion (NZASR) and another from the Brazilian Association for the Study of Religions (ABHR). By the deadline for bids on May 31st, 2016, a full application was received from the NZASR. The Executive discussed the issue during their annual business meeting in Helsinki, July 2016. After thorough discussion, the Executive unanimously agreed to accept the bid from the NZASR. The then Secretary General of the IAHR notified the NZASR of the decision, and formally announced the decision to all member associations/societies and affiliates in an email sent out on November 27, 2016. The announcement offered heartfelt thanks to all the institutions, organizations, and people (e.g. Dunedin City Council, University of Otago, Tourism New Zealand, Enterprise Dunedin, the other Study of Religions programs in the country, and the Australian Association for the Study of Religions) for the support, collaboration and cooperation they are prepared to offer with regard to the planning and execution of the 2020 IAHR World Congress. The decision was also announced on the IAHR website.

Since then, the IAHR President, Prof. Tim Jensen and the IAHR Acting Secretary General, Prof. Satoko Fujiwara have been in continuous contact with the New Zealand host, Prof. Will Sweetman, Congress Director of the 2020 World Congress on relevant matters. Prof. Fujiwara serves as a member of the Congress Organizing Committee and Prof. Jensen as a member of its Advisory Committee. Prof. Jensen visited Dunedin at the end of January and beginning of February 2017 and had very constructive and promising meetings with the local hosts, the Vice-Chancellor of the University, the Mayor of Dunedin and local tourism agents. Prof. Sweetman was in turn invited to the IAHR Executive Committee meeting in Ho Chi Minh City in July 2017 in order to discuss, inter alia, the theme and subthemes of the Congress and the budget plan. In addition to these, the IAHR Deputy Secretary General, Prof. Ann Taves, as a co-chair of the Academic Programme Committee, has been engaged in the planning process with Prof. John Shaver and Prof. Ben Schonthal, the two other co-chairs of APC.

A first circular about the Congress with Call for Papers will be released soon on the Congress website (https://www.iahr2020.kiwi/) and is also included in this e-Bulletin Supplement (pp.49-50). The officers of the IAHR member associations/societies and affiliates are kindly requested to make sure that all individual members receive information about the Congress now and in the coming years leading up to the event.
2.3. IAHR Regional and Special Conferences 2015-2018

Upon application, the IAHR Executive Committee has granted the status of an IAHR Special or Regional Conference to the following conferences:

IAHR Special Conferences
- Finnish Society for the Study of Religion (SUS), European Association for the Study of Religions (EASR) & Study of Religions at the University of Helsinki, in collaboration with Comparative Religion at the Åbo Akademi University and the Donner Institute, Turku, Finland: “Relocating Religion,” June 28-July 1, 2016, Helsinki.

The IAHR Executive Committee held its annual business meeting in the context of the conference. IAHR President, Prof. Tim Jensen gave an opening speech for the Special Conference, paying tribute to the contribution to the study of religion in Finland by the Finnish Society for the Study of Religion, its international and renowned journal Temenos, and a long list of outstanding and IAHR dedicated Finnish scholars.

- Belgian Association for the Study of Religions (BABEL), European Association for the Study of Religions (EASR) & Faculty of Theology and Religious Studies at the University of Leuven, Belgium: “Communicating Religion,” September 18-21, 2017, Leuven, Belgium.

The IAHR Executive Committee was represented by President Prof. Tim Jensen and Deputy Secretary General Prof. Ann Taves. Prof. Jensen gave an opening speech, expressing his gratitude to the younger as well older Belgian scholars who had contributed to meeting the challenges created by the demise of the former association, and he directed special thanks to Prof. Jos Verheyden for his contribution and for hosting this EASR/IAHR Conference in Leuven. Prof. Taves delivered a keynote lecture, “Communicating about Religion/s and Other Worldviews in the Classroom.”

IAHR Regional Conference

The IAHR Executive Committee had its annual meeting in the context of the conference. The IAHR President, Prof. Jensen gave both an opening and a closing speech sharing with the audience reflections on the academic aims and means of the IAHR, and expressing his thanks to the SSEASR Secretary General, Sophana Srichampa, to the SSEASR President, Amarjiva Lochan, and to the local organizers. Prof. Jensen, on a personal note, expressed his sympathy and respect for the Vietnamese people and their struggle to overcome the sufferings of the past. The speeches were simultaneously translated into Vietnamese and broadcasted. In addition, Prof. Morny Joy, ex-IAHR Publications Officer and current Series Editor of the IAHR Book series, gave a keynote speech. The report of the conference is included in this e-Bulletin Supplement (p.53).

2.4. Revised Procedures for IAHR Special and Regional Conferences

The IAHR Executive Committee at its business meeting in Ho Chi Minh City, July 2017, agreed to revise procedures for IAHR Special and Regional Conferences. As the purpose of this revision is purely practical, revised texts have already been uploaded at the IAHR website (http://www.iahrweb.org/conferences.php). See Appendix III for details.

2.5. Future IAHR Special and Regional Conferences
At the moment, the IAHR Executive Committee has awarded the status of IAHR Special/Regional Conferences to the conferences of the following associations.

IAHR Special Conferences
- International Study of Religions in Eastern and Central Europe Association (ISORECEA) & the University of Szeged: “Un(b)locking Religion: Studying Religion in Today’s Central and Eastern Europe,” May 24-26, 2018, Szeged, Hungary. See the ISORECEA conference website.
- German Association for the Study of Religions (DVRW) & the University of Hannover: “Concepts of Religion,” 2019, Hannover, Germany.

IAHR Regional Conference
- Schweizerische Gesellschaft für Religionswissenschaft/Société Suisse pour la Science des Religions (SGR/SSSR), European Association for the Study of Religions (EASR) & the University of Bern, Institute for the Science of Religion: “Multiple Religious Identities – Individuals, Communities, Traditions,” June 17-21, 2018, Bern, Switzerland. See the conference website.
- African Association for the Study of Religions (AASR) & the University of Zambia and Justo Mwale University: “Revisiting Religion, Politics, and the State in Africa and the African Diaspora,” August 1-4, 2018, Lusaka, Zambia. See the AASR conference website.

The IAHR Executive Committee is pursuing the same strategy as previous Executive Committees with regard to implementing and furthering the global character of the IAHR, and we encourage national or regional member societies and associations that have not recently hosted IAHR Special or Regional Conferences to consider this possibility. As seen in the case of ISORECEA above, IAHR affiliates can also apply for a status of IAHR Special Conference.

2.6. IAHR Special and Regional Conferences in 2020, and the World Congress in Dunedin in 2020
National and regional member societies and associations that are considering the possibility of hosting an IAHR Special or Regional Conference in the years ahead are thus encouraged to approach the IAHR Acting Secretary General at the earliest possible stages of consideration and planning. With regard 2020, though, I sincerely ask the members and affiliates to ensure – wherever possible – that their conference planning and activities do not conflict with the IAHR XXII Quinquennial World Congress in Dunedin, August 23-29, 2020. Not only are members and affiliates kindly requested to avoid holding their Annual or Bi-Annual meetings and conferences at times that conflict with the timing of the IAHR World Congress, they are also kindly encouraged to consider ‘following in the footsteps’ of the European Association for the Study of Religions, which does not hold its Annual Conference in the year of an IAHR World Congress to make sure that individual members are not pressed to try to find time and money to attend two important conferences within the same year. As regards the IAHR World Congress 2020 in Dunedin, the IAHR and the local host will do their best to accommodate any member societies and association that would like time and space to hold a business meeting within the framework of the IAHR World Congress.
3. Membership Developments

3.1. Admission of Members and Affiliates, and Applications and Recommendations for Membership 2015-2018

The memory of the 2015 General Assembly is still fresh, which adopted Association belge pour l’étude des religions/Belgische Associatie voor de Studie van Religies (BABEL), Irish Society for the Academic Study of Religions (ISASR), Lithuanian Society for the Study of Religions (LSSR), Philippine Association for the Study of Culture, History and Religion (PASCHR) as members and societies to the IAHR. The Asociacion de Cientistas Sociales de la Religion del Mercosur (ACSRM) as a regional member and the Society for Ancient Mediterranean Religions (SAMR) as an affiliate.

Since then the IAHR Executive Committee has received applications from the following associations and societies.

-In early 2016, the Society of Biblical Literature (SBL) applied for an affiliation to the IAHR. The IAHR Executive Committee at its meeting in Helsinki July 2016 unanimously decided to recommend to the IAHR International Committee (meeting in Bern, 2018) the adoption of the SBL as an affiliate to the IAHR.

In addition, the IAHR Executive Committee members have respectively been in contact with some of the newly joined associations, recently revitalized associations and future possible applicants in order to assist them in fostering the academic study of religion in various regions of the world.

Furthermore, the IAHR President, Acting Secretary General and Deputy Secretary General had a meeting with AAR outgoing and incoming leadership, namely, Prof. Jack Fitzmier (AAR Executive Director), Prof. Laurie Patton (AAR President Elect), Prof. Robert Puckett (AAR Director of Meetings), and Prof. Kathryn McClymond (AAR Board Member and Chair of the Program Committee), during AAR’s Annual Meeting in Boston, November 2017. We have decided to explore several possibilities to enhance the IAHR-AAR collaboration such as:

- use the AAR “Seminar” (a program unit type) to create IAHR Seminars on topics that highlight global/international perspectives/contributions
- have the AAR host an IAHR Special or Regional Conference
- increase IAHR’s visibility on the AAR’s website
- have an IAHR booth to advertise the 2020 Dunedin World Congress in the Book Exhibit Hall at the next AAR’s Annual Meeting in Denver.

Last but not least, as a member of the AAR International Committee, the IAHR Acting Secretary General would like to encourage individual members of the IAHR member associations and societies to apply for AAR’s Collaborative International Research Grants (CIRG). The IAHR Secretary General has had a seat in the AAR International Committee (former Secretary General for its 2015 and 2016 meetings, Acting Secretary General for its 2017 meeting) and worked together to develop AAR’s vision for their global connections project. The CIRG program is one of its initial outcomes, which started in 2013. However, IAHR members have not taken full advantage of the program, possibly because there is a misunderstanding as to who is eligible to apply. The program is not restricted to AAR members. Each individual member of the IAHR member associations and societies can apply, as long as there is more than one AAR member in the research group. For details, see AAR CIRG website.
3.2. Membership Declared Lapsed
During the General Assembly in Erfurt, 2015, it was reported that the membership of five associations, namely, the Cuban, Israeli, Nigerian, Portuguese, and Indonesian associations, had been declared lapsed.

However, the Nigerian Association for the Study of Religions (NASR) applied for re-admission, which was approved by the IAHR Executive Committee at its meeting in Helsinki 2016, based on the new re-admission policy.

4. Financial Situation
With reference to the Treasurer’s Report for 2015-2018 included in this e-Bulletin Supplement, I am happy to say that the financial situation of the IAHR remains healthy. However, I hasten to add that maintaining our health depends on a strict policy in regard to expenses related to the performance of the work of the Executive Committee members, as well as on the capability of most of the members to finance almost all of their IAHR expenses themselves.

Therefore, following the Treasurer’s observation, “The IAHR received two donations in 2015 …. The relatively low figures in this line show that there is a clear margin for improvement” (p.44), I sincerely ask you to consider donating to the IAHR in order to support and ensure the continuous development of the academic study of religion. We believe that readers of this e-Bulletin Supplement are dedicated scholars who appreciate the distinguished value of the study of religion and care for the future of the IAHR. Your contribution to the IAHR finances would be most appreciated.

5. CIPSH
I have just asked for your financial support of the IAHR in part because the CIPSH, the International Council for Philosophy and Human Sciences (Conseil International de la Philosophie et des Sciences Humaines), under the influence of the financial crisis of the UNESCO, has stopped allocating grants to its member organizations, of which the IAHR is one of the oldest. Although CIPSH has faced additional difficulties beyond the UNESCO financial crisis that led to a few years of inactivity, it has recently resumed functioning due to the efforts of board members including the former IAHR President, Prof. Rosalind I. J. Hackett, now Vice-President of the CIPSH.

As I have reported in the e-Bulletin Supplement issued in August 2017, the CIPSH co-organized the World Humanities Conference (WHC), its first world conference in its history, which took place in Liège, Belgium during August 6-12, 2017. In this e-Bulletin Supplement, I would like to focus on its General Assembly held on August 6, preceding the WHC program. During the GA, Secretary General of the CIPSH, Prof. Luiz Oosterbeek made the following proposals to each member organization of the CIPSH:

1) to create CIPSH’s own Global Humanities Chair program, in addition to the existing UNESCO Chairs on the Humanities.
2) to launch a program on Global History of Humankind.
3) to draft the Global Humanities Report.

The CIPSH General Assembly endorsed all the three proposals and mandated the CIPSH Executive Committee to continue discussing them.

The following CIPSH Executive Committee Meeting was held in Xiamen, China, on April 16-17, 2018. Being a member of the CIPSH Executive Committee, the IAHR President,
Prof. Tim Jensen, not only attended the meeting where he presented a draft revised CIPSH Constitution and By-Laws, but he also gave a plenary speech on establishing a second order discourse on religion, first in universities, then in publicly-funded schools. The speech was very well received and also considered to be appropriate for CIPSH Vice-President, Prof. Rosalind Hackett’s proposal to launch a CIPSH school outreach project. The proposal was given at the CIPSH General Assembly held in Beijing in 2015.

During the Xiamen meeting revised proposals regarding the CIPSH Chairs, the Global Humanities Report, and the Global History of Humankind were discussed. It was agreed to go ahead with the projects and set up various steering groups. The CIPSH Executive Committee unanimously agreed to recommend the draft for the revised Constitution and By-Laws to the General Assembly meeting two years from now.

The IAHR Executive Committee, above all its President and Acting Secretary General who have been observing the development since the CIPSH General Assemblies in Beijing and Liège, have been giving serious consideration to these CIPSH initiatives. We are concerned about the feasibility of the projects as well as the overall social innovation- and public policy-based agenda of the revived CIPSH. Therefore, we are thinking of setting up a few “IAHR working groups” which are both related to and independent of the CIPSH’s new projects so that they will be able to stand on their own no matter what will happen to the CIPSH. With such proactive working groups, we will be well prepared to participate in the CIPSH projects. The working groups will not have any financial support from the IAHR. They will be created on the IAHR Executive Committee’s initiative and subsequently be announced on the IAHR website as well as in the IAHR e-Bulletin supplements.

6. IAHR Related Publications

6.1. NVMEN: International Review for the History of Religions

The IAHR Executive Committee appoints, and normally constitutes, the NVMEN Editorial Board. It also recommends to the publisher, Brill, the appointment of Managing and Reviews Editor(s). Current Managing Editors are Profs. Gregory D. Alles and Laura Feldt. Review Editors are Prof. Carole Cusack and Dr. Rose Mary Amenga-Etego. The IAHR Acting Secretary General who is also its Publications Officer is in continuous email contact with the publisher Brill, normally represented by an Acquisitions Editor, currently Laura Morris, as well as with the Managing Editors. As of 2011, each annual volume of NVMEN is published in six issues, and as of 2013 the IAHR logo figures in each issue. As stated in the “Procedures Concerning NVMEN: International Review for the History of Religions”, the IAHR Executive Committee considers NVMEN the flagship journal of the IAHR, with “a proud tradition of quality and international coverage, and the editorial board is very keen on improving it in tune with current developments in the subject and in the IAHR organization.”

Consequently, the IAHR Executive Committee discusses NVMEN and its future during the annual NVMEN Editorial Board meetings, normally held in conjunction with the annual business meeting of the Executive Committee. When the Acquisitions Editor finds it difficult to attend the EC’s meeting, she calls for a meeting in another context. Thus, the 2017 Editorial Board meeting was held during the annual meeting of the American Academy of Religion, which the IAHR President, Acting Secretary General (also Publications Officer) and the two Managing Editors attended. The Managing Editors and the IAHR President, Acting Secretary General also work together to decide whom to ask to write an obituary for a passed Honorary Life Member of the IAHR, by taking various factors into consideration.

Lastly, we would like to ask you to help to increase the visibility of NVMEN in your local/international networks. We can no longer expect university libraries to renew their contracts with NVMEN automatically without your encouragement and support.

6.2. IAHR Book Series Equinox

The new IAHR Book Series, “The Study of Religion in a Global Context” was launched in 2015, with Prof. Morny Joy as its Series Editor, Prof. Katja Triplett as Managing Editor and Prof. Tim Jensen as Executive Editor. Since then a number of proposals have been received, mostly from Europe but also from other regions, and two books have been published, with several more books in process. Please inform the individual members of your organization of the series, which is an ideal venue of publication not only for established scholars but also for junior scholars, and not only for historical and comparative studies but also for multi-disciplinary studies.

6.3. IAHR and IAHR Related Proceedings, Bulletins, and e-Bulletin Supplements

Dynamics of Religion: Past and Present. Proceedings of the XXI World Congress of the International Association for the History of Religions was, as reported earlier, published and uploaded at the De Gruyter’s website. Please remember to send information to members about this, if you have not already done so.

Allow me to ask all of you once again to send me information regarding publications that have developed from the Erfurt Congress. In addition, I would like to ask the organizers of former IAHR Special and Regional Congresses to send me web-links to their proceedings or any other outcome documents. I have been unable to update the IAHR webpage on IAHR Special and Regional Congresses after Brno 2008. I am thinking of asking the organizations that held IAHR Special/Regional conferences between 2008 and 2017 for help over this summer. Your cooperation would be much appreciated.

7. An Extended Executive Committee Meeting to Discuss the Future of the IAHR

When running for the Presidency of the IAHR in 2015, Prof. Tim Jensen stated that he considered it a part of the task of the President to help provide a sense of continuity in the Executive Committee, and to help the IAHR bridge past, present and future. Two years later he arrived at the conclusion that it might be time for the IAHR Executive Committee to, in a concerted and strategic way, take stock of the whereabouts of the IAHR: where are ‘we,’ how did ‘we’ get there, how are ‘we’ doing, and where are ‘we’ going? The other Executive Committee members had also been thinking that the IAHR stood at a crossroads and readily agreed to ask the President to head and start preparations for a special and extended IAHR Executive Committee meeting dedicated to this purpose. Subsequently, the President has invited, on behalf of the Executive Committee, former IAHR Presidents, General Secretaries, directors or co-directors of the IAHR World Congresses since 1995, the director of the upcoming IAHR World Congress in 2020, and the two NVMEN managing editors. He has also sent special personal invitations to a few particularly dedicated officers and colleagues in strategically important, yet in this context underrepresented, member associations and regions. The invitees together with the members of the Executive Committee all in all reflect to the highest possible degree the diversity within the IAHR in regard to gender, generation, geography and IAHR-related experience, a diversity needed for a successful outcome of the meeting. The Greek Society for the Study of Culture and Religion (GSSCR) has been invited to arrange a one-day open seminar on “Theoretical Frameworks for the Study of Ancient Greek Religion” prior to the IAHR extended Executive Committee meeting, and the President of the GSSCR, Prof. Panayotis Pachis, an enthusiastic supporter of the IAHR who has helped secure the venue for the special meeting, has been invited to also attend the extended meeting which is planned for September 2019. After the meeting with the special invitees, the IAHR Executive Committee will hold a normal ‘closed’ meeting, during which it will seek to draw some preliminary conclusions and start to prepare the presentation thereof to the members and affiliates at the next IAHR World Congress in Dunedin, 2020.

8. Change of the URL of the IAHR Website

During an Executive Committee meeting, one member, Prof. Amarjiva Lochan, pointed out that the URL of the IAHR website should not have a particular national indicator. With a kind help of the IAHR Treasurer and the webmaster of the IAHR, I have finally had the URL changed from http://www.iahr.dk/ to www.iahrweb.org.

Please change the link to the IAHR website on your organization’s webpage although any access to the old URL will automatically be redirected to the new URL.

Satoko Fujiwara, IAHR Acting Secretary General, Tokyo, May 18, 2018
V. IAHR Treasurer’s Report, 2015-2018

Introduction
The present report covers the period from 1 January 2015 to 31 December 2017. As a midterm report, it anticipates the full report for the years 2015 to 2019 which will be presented at the next IAHR General Assembly in 2020.

A glance at the table at the end of the report will show that the IAHR’s finances are in a healthy state, with a balance of approximately $126,000 as per 31 December 2017, up from $105,000 at the beginning of the term (1 January 2015).

2015-2017 Summary

Income
Total income for the whole period has been approximately $72,000 with an average of $24,000/year. There are two main streams of regular income: amounts paid by Brill for NVMEN (€10,295/year = about $12,000, depending on the exchange rate), and dues from national and affiliate associations (about $11,000/year, also depending on the exchange rate, since dues are now published and paid in euros exclusively).

Expenditure
Average expenditure for non-congress years (2016, 2017) has been approximately $14,000/year. The major item of expenditure has been the subsidy for the Erfurt congress in 2015 ($24,000). Thanks to the very efficient organization of the Erfurt congress, a substantial part of that subsidy ($9,800) could be returned to the IAHR in 2016. Apart from this, the IAHR has spent amounts that enabled members of the Executive Committee to attend work meetings. The amount spent – $8,000/year – is very modest considering that it supported the EC’s 12 members and the representation of the IAHR through its President or Secretary General at multiple events in addition to the yearly EC meeting (see below for more details). In addition, the IAHR has supported the organization of several IAHR labelled (IAHR Regional and Special) conferences with smaller amounts.

Bank account and exchange rates
The major change at the beginning of the term has been the move of the account from Ireland to Switzerland, a complex process that was successfully completed thanks to the generous help of the previous IAHR Treasurer, Prof. B. Bocking. The IAHR formerly maintained two accounts: one in euros, the other in US dollars. Due to technical reasons related to the new bank, the IAHR holds now its finances in euros exclusively. While having a limited impact on the operations, since most of the transactions were already executed in currencies other than the US dollar, the move also facilitates the Treasurer’s work. The transfer from the former US dollar account to the new euro account was done in early 2016, when the US dollar was relatively high against the euro ($1 = €0.92). To keep up with previous reports, however, the accounts are reported in USD. Consequently, the recent rise of the euro ($1 = €0.83 by the end of 2017) created an artificial income of about $15,000 in 2017.
Since interest rates in Switzerland are either extremely low or even negative, the present Treasurer did not find it worthwhile to officially register the IAHR as a charity, which would have enabled it to have interest-bearing accounts. According to art. 3a of the Constitution, amended in Erfurt, the IAHR’s “primary location” is the official address of the IAHR Treasurer. Officially registering the IAHR as a charity in the current location of the Treasurer, Switzerland, might prove an additional challenge for future Treasurers, when they likely will have to move the IAHR account to their own country.

2015-2017 Detailed reporting

Income

200 and 210 Annual dues to the IAHR

One of the two main sources of revenue is the annual dues paid by both national member associations and IAHR affiliates. The amount collected under this line averages $11’000 / year. While some associations paid right away, to the great pleasure of the Treasurer, others needed a little reminder. While having previously published its rates in both euros and US dollars, the move to a single account in euros prompted the publication of rates in euros exclusively.

The rates are unchanged since the end of the last term: a minimum of €80 for associations up to 33 members, €2.40 / member for associations having between 34 and 499 members, and a flat rate of €1’600 for associations larger than 500 members (currently only two: Japan and the USA). Affiliates with a membership of under 50 pay a rate of €0.80 / member while those over 50 pay a flat rate of €80. The rates will be periodically re-evaluated by the EC, to make sure that the value they represent remains stable, and are fair to both the member associations and the IAHR.

Member association dues 2015-2018, updated to 18 May 2018

Categories: 1 = fewer than 34 members/concessions; 2 = 34-499 members; 3 = 500 or more members (according to last payment)

* : payment confirmed to be made at the Bern conference or therefore

220 NVMEN

The second main source of income is NVMEN. The IAHR currently receives €10’295 p.a., paid in 6 installments of €1’715, an equivalent of $11’300-$14’000 p.a. depending on the exchange rate. The payments are adjusted annually according to the annual Netherlands inflation rate, so that the income maintains its value.

230 CIPSH
Formerly offering grants for conference support, CIPSH no longer provides any kind of financial support. The last entry in this line was in 2011.

240 Other and donations
The IAHR received two donations in 2015: one from Dorothea Ditchfield for the Gary Lease lecture in Erfurt ($2'400) and one from P. Brodeur for the Société Québécoise pour l'Etude de la Religion (€400) that was for the payment of missing dues if the society resumes its activity – which it actually did in 2016. The relatively low figures in this line show that there is a clear margin for improvement. A process of reflection about raising a more significant amount from donations has been initiated, especially in the light of helping scholars with limited financial capacities to attend IAHR events, such as the next 2020 Congress in Dunedin. Even if the IAHR finances are now in a good shape, it cannot provide support to all scholars who would need it, given that it will also have to spend significant amounts in the near future to subsidize the 2020 Congress.

The society is not registered officially as a charity in the US or Canada, meaning that donations do not qualify as tax exempt under section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. However, there are possibilities to donate and to get tax benefits for citizen of several European countries through “Transnational Giving Europe” (TGE). Persons interested to make a donation are encouraged to directly contact the Treasurer (Philippe.Bornet@unil.ch). It is possible to specify a purpose of a donation. In addition, remembering the IAHR when writing a will would be a most appreciated and generous gesture that would greatly help the Association to pursue its goals without incurring any administrative or legal complications.

2.2 Expenditure
110 African Trust Fund
In 2015, the IAHR finished spending the amount of the “African trust fund” (a legacy of the 2000 Durban congress), paying subsidies to awardees. As had been planned from the very beginning, the fund is now (since the Erfurt congress) officially closed.

120 Bank charges and audit
Back when the IAHR had its account in Ireland, the bank charged about $310 / year for various bank fees. The Swiss bank charges about the same for a non-personal account, with an average of $300 / year. This includes account management fees (€50 / year) and relatively pricy international bank transfers. The present Treasurer is exploring ways to reduce the fees on international transfers, proposing to beneficiaries who are outside of the SEPA perimeter to use “Transferwise”, a system which is considerably cheaper than usual bank wire transfers.

130 CIPSH subscription
The CIPSH subscription is still at the same rate of €600 p.a. The amount paid in 2015 corresponds to 2014 arrears, and the amount paid in 2016 represents the 2015 arrears and the 2016 membership.
140 2015 & 2020 Congress support
In 2015, the largest item of expenditure was the Erfurt congress. The EC had agreed in 2013 to make a subvention to the Erfurt Congress equivalent to $15’000 plus an “IAHR Endowment” amount of $8’695, a total of $23’695 or €17’297. In October 2015, it appeared that the Erfurt conference closed with a significant surplus. The organizers kindly proposed to refund some of the IAHR subsidy. In the end, about $10’000 was refunded. As decided in 2016, at Helsinki, that amount was earmarked. Its purpose has not been specified yet, but it will probably be used towards enabling scholars with limited funding to attend IAHR related events. To make sure that this amount maintains its value, it has been deposited in an account in Swiss francs, at the same bank as the other euro account. This amount is included in the 2017 total of $126’115.97.

141 Conference support
Since 2010, and initially with support from CIPSH, IAHR has provided smaller sums for conferences in non-Congress years, for an average of $1’700 / year. In the period 2015-2017, it has provided support for the 2017 SSEASR conference in Ho Chi Minh City (IAHR Regional conference), the 2018 ISORECEA conference in Szeged (IAHR Special Conference) and the 2018 AASR conference in Lusaka (IAHR Regional Conference). The first two were both paid in 2017.

160 Website and publications
Payments under this category of spending include the management of the IAHR website by Jeremy Hughes, the registration for the internet domains http://www.iahr.dk and http://www.iahrweb.org (a new domain name, considered as conveying a better sense of the international character of the IAHR), small gifts of gratitude to former NVMEN officers, and a contribution to the Religious Studies Project ($250 / year).

170 EC Travel and expenses
Apart from the quinquennial Congress subvention, the biggest expenditure has been for travel and subsistence for the Executive Committee, averaging $7’900 / year. This amount includes subsidies for enabling members of the EC to attend meetings in Erfurt, Helsinki and Ho Chi Minh City. It also includes partial subsidies to cover the travels of the Secretary General and the President for participating and representing the Association to different events, such as the 2016 CIPSH meeting in Beijing or the 2016 European Academy of Religion meeting in Bologna.

It must be emphasized that the yearly expense under this category of spending is very low, considering the 12 members of the EC and the extra expenses incurred by the role of representation associated with the functions of President and Secretary General. Dividing the amount spent by the number EC members amounts to a figure of about $660 / person and year, revealing an important “hidden subsidy” to the IAHR: namely the EC members’ own resources and academic funding from their respective institutions. If the IAHR had to fully cover the travel and stay of 12 persons, in addition to at least 3 trips for its President and / or Secretary General, the estimated total (depending on the destinations) would be at least $18’000 p.a.
Conclusion
I would like offer warm thanks to the former IAHR treasurer, Prof. Brian Bocking, for not only introducing me to the intricacies of the IAHR accounting in Erfurt, but also for continuing to work “behind the scenes” to set up a new account, and for continuing to provide me with extremely helpful advice whenever needed. I also thank my fellow treasurers and officers of the IAHR member associations, who – for the large majority of them – have been collaborating in a very efficient way, taking due notice of the new bank information. I would also like to thank Dr. Elisabeth Begemann from Erfurt, who has been extremely helpful in getting the money refunded to the IAHR account in 2016. Last but not least, I would like to thank the President, Secretary General and the colleagues of the EC for their cooperation and patience, while I have been slowly figuring out the different aspects related to the handling of IAHR finances.

Dear Prof Bornet,

As requested, I have reviewed the accounts of the International Association for the History of Religions

I am satisfied that the accounts present a true and fair view of the income and expenditure for the three year period ended 31st December 2017 and of the financial position of the Association as at 31st December 2017.

VI. IAHR XXII Quinquennial World Congress in Dunedin, New Zealand, August, 2020: Call for Papers

The XXII Quinquennial World Congress of the IAHR, hosted by the New Zealand Association for the Study of Religions, will take place in Dunedin, Aotearoa New Zealand August 23-29, 2020.

While welcoming contributions on any topic in the academic study of religion, this year’s Congress will have the theme of Centres and Peripheries.

From its earliest moments, the academic study of religion has consistently placed certain traditions, peoples, geographies, concepts, and institutions at the centre of its analyses, while at the same time relegating others to the periphery. The 2020 Congress invites scholars to reflect on these dynamics, to historicize and critique them, and to reconsider how, why and with what effects scholars of religion have engaged in acts of normalization and marginalization. The setting of Aotearoa New Zealand, distant from the historical centres of religious studies in North America and Europe, provides a fitting location for this examination as well as for considerations of other related dynamics. These include patterns of dominance and subjugation, transformation and repositioning and, especially, migration and indigeneity. While we welcome interdisciplinary, multi-method and comparative research, we ask that scholars submit within one of seven themed areas.

1. Locality and movement: Studies that focus on the emplacement and migrations of people, texts and traditions over spaces and times. This includes themes of land, migration, colonization and diaspora. We especially welcome submissions examining the category of indigeneity and indigenous religions.

2. Regulating and Debating: Studies that consider religion in the context of debates over the proper ordering of human society and the regulating of human behaviour, including via norms of gender, race, and sexuality. Papers related to the intersections of religion with legal regimes and/or structures of political power are especially encouraged.

3. Historicizing and embodying: Studies that focus largely on situating religious communities, persons, practices and/or institutions in their historical and cultural contexts. We especially welcome submissions examining religion in places, times, bodies and contexts that have been historically overlooked or marginalized in the study of religion.

4. Interpreting and comparing: Studies whose main focus is on interpreting, clarifying, comparing and/or analysing texts, rituals, stories, material culture, art or other elements of religion. This includes studies that examine the place of religion in material and textual artefacts not normally associated with religion.

5. Innovating and transforming: Studies that focus on the transformations of religion over time, with particular attention to recent transformations in technology, communication and social organisations. We especially welcome studies that reflect on the influence of new media on religion and religious studies.
6. Measuring and Testing: Studies that focus on causal factors that lead to and shape systems of beliefs, behaviours, and institutions found in one or more traditions, regions, and/or across time. This includes studies that reflect on role and importance of scientific and empirical methodologies in the study of religions as well as studies that consider generally the interplay of science and religion (as methods, fields of expert knowledge, and historical constructs).

7. Reflecting and Critiquing: Studies that critically consider the field of religious studies, its methodologies, theories, patterns of production, historical development, scholarly composition, institutional embedding, and future possibilities. We especially welcome submissions that examine the dynamics of centring and marginalising, foregrounding and ignoring, authenticating and debunking, in the study of religions.
VII. Recommendation of Changes to the Nomination and Election Process of the IAHR Executive Committee

Shortly after the 2015 election of the IAHR Executive Committee in Erfurt, Prof. Brian Bocking, who was the IAHR Treasurer at that time and also served as the Election Manager during the election, sent the new Executive Committee his observations and suggestions as to the procedure of the election. Most importantly, he found it difficult to manage the election because there was no rule governing the withdrawal of nominees. Therefore, he has come up with suggestions regarding the formalization of the withdrawal process (i.e., how and when to let nominees withdraw), based on his experience as Election Manager for the 2015 election.

As his suggestions are purely practical and will not harm the interest of any member of the IAHR, I, Acting Secretary General of the IAHR, see it entirely unproblematic to accept the suggestions. I will summarize his suggestions below and recommend the International Committee to adopt them. The detailed version of the suggestions with Prof. Bocking’s reasonings is attached as Appendix II (pp.54-55). Even the summary below may look quite detailed, but these rules would greatly help future nominees and election managers.

The process of candidate withdrawal up to the date six weeks prior to the start date of the Congress.

1. At least six weeks before the start date of the Congress, the candidate informs the election manager in writing of his or her intended withdrawal from the election.
2. The election manager informs the candidate that s/he (the election manager) will publicly announce the withdrawal to IAHR member associations after 14 days (actual date to be stated in writing) and that s/he will meanwhile inform the chair or key officer of the candidate’s own nominating body of the intended withdrawal.
3. The election manager, within 3 days, informs the chair or a key officer of the candidate’s nominating committee/association in writing of the candidate’s notification of withdrawal, advising that the withdrawal will be publicised by the date already notified to the candidate.
4. The candidate may in writing rescind her/his withdrawal during the 2-week period, up to the day before the withdrawal is due to be announced. In this case the election manager will confirm in writing with the candidate (cc to the nominating body) that the candidate is still standing for election and will take no further action.
5. If the candidate, having withdrawn and rescinded her/his withdrawal, subsequently withdraws again, any such withdrawal must be taken as final. It cannot be rescinded twice. The announcement of withdrawal will be duly made by the election officer according to the original timetable.
6. Once the public announcement of withdrawal has been made, on or after the agreed date for the announcement, a withdrawal cannot under any circumstances be rescinded.

Process for withdrawal after a date six weeks before the Congress.

7. The candidate informs the election manager in writing of his/her intended withdrawal from the election.

8. The election manager advises the candidate that their withdrawal will be final and that there is no possibility to rejoin the contest. If there is any ambiguity in the candidate’s statement of withdrawal the election manager should make reasonable attempts to confirm in writing with the candidate that the candidate has definitely withdrawn; no response will be taken as a confirmation of withdrawal.

9. The election manager then publicises the withdrawal and/or informs the EC, the nominating body etc. only as s/he judges appropriate. In the case of withdrawals within one month of the date of the Congress it may not be practicable for the election manager to alter already-prepared sets of voting papers and candidate lists etc. and s/he may decide to wait until the election item in the IC meeting to announce the final tally of late withdrawals and corresponding amendments to voting choices, bearing in mind that candidates may withdraw up to the moment of the election.

10. It is not the election manager’s role to advise candidates on whether or not they should withdraw, only to inform them of the process and carry it out.

On behalf of the IAHR Executive Committee,
Satoko Fujiwara, IAHR Acting Secretary General
Appendix I: 7th SSEASR Conference, Ho Chi Minh City, Socialist Republic of Vietnam, July 2013: Report for the IAHR

The 7th SSEASR Conference took place at Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam during July 09-12, 2017. The main theme ASEAN Region’s Culture and Religion by the end of 21st Century: A Dialogue of Past with Present? was divided into nine sub-themes. The Conference was organised by Vietnam Buddhist University, Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam in collaboration with Vietnam Buddhist Research Institute, Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam. The latter was highly supportive to permit the parallel academic sessions as well as the Opening and Closing Ceremony. Our Conference drew a lot of interest as it was a Regional IAHR Conference. Scholars from 36 countries came to attend it which covered all major countries of the world. It was also a place where the IAHR Board meeting also took place.

The Keynote Address was delivered by Prof. Morny Joy, University of Calgary, Canada. Her address on Diversity, Enrichment, and Future Prospective Developments: The Study of Religion in South and Southeast Asia drew large applause as she touched the core issue of carrying out researches in the field of the study of religions. Prof Tim Jensen, President, IAHR spoke on the warmth and hospitality of the two academic institutions which was unprecedented in the wake of certain local organisational hiccups.

The Conference ended with the address of the Indian Ambassador to Vietnam who spoke on the intensification of the academic dialogue between South Asia and Southeast Asia. A special mention is of Ven. Prof. Dr. Thich Nhat Tu, Chair 7th SSEASR, Vice Rector, Vietnam Buddhist University. He being the Country Representative had a team of over 100 volunteers. The Address of Ven. Dr. Thich Tri Quang, Chancellor, Vietnam Buddhist Research Institute and the Inaugural Remark of Ven. Thich Giac Toan, Deputy Rector, Vietnam Buddhist University drew applause.

The 7th SSEASR Conference was unique in the sense that there was a constant supply of translation to all participants, in each parallel rooms (Vietnamese to English and English to Vietnamese). 78 papers were presented from the regional scholars, and there was another lot of 120 papers from other countries. Also, we had a local tour too for all participants and there was as usual a post- Conference tour to historical sites of Danang, Hue and Hoi An.

[THIS REPORT WAS SENT TO THE IAHR ACTING SECRETARY GENERAL BY THE SSEASR SECRETARY GENERAL, PROF. SOPHANA SRICHAMPA. THANK YOU TO PROF. SRICHAMPA FOR PREPARING AND SENDING THIS REPORT]
Appendix II: 2015 Election Manager’s Suggestions as to the Election Process of the IAHR Executive Committee

Withdrawal of nominees
As a firm principle, any nominee may withdraw from an election at any time, and s/he does not need to give anyone a reason for his/her withdrawal. The rationale for this is that a condition for candidacy in the first place is that a candidate is willing to stand, so if a candidate is no longer willing to stand s/he can no longer be considered a candidate.

However, the process of withdrawal does need formalising. At present there are no rules governing withdrawal, and uncertainty around this process could make the practical management of the election (publishing lists of nominees, preparing accurate voting papers, etc.) almost impossible.

My own suggestions would be as follows:
A candidate nominated by the NC who withdraws before the deadline for further nominations may do so by writing to the Secretary-General or whoever is handling the nominations procedure on the SG’s behalf (in 2015 the GS handled the nominations process and I acted on behalf of the EC as election manager from that point on). The SG will confirm in writing with the candidate that s/he definitely wishes to withdraw, will notify the chair of the Nominating Committee of the withdrawal, and will publicise the withdrawal via the website or email to member associations within a month of the candidate having confirmed his/her withdrawal.

A candidate nominated by the Nominating Committee may however rejoin the contest (by rescinding their withdrawal in writing to the Secretary General, cc to the Chair of the Nominating Committee) on any date up to and including the deadline for further nominations. In this case, the SG will treat the rescinding of the withdrawal in the same way as other nominations received by the deadline and, if the candidate’s withdrawal has already been announced, will publicise the fact that the NC’s candidate is back in the contest at the same time as announcing all further nominations.

Once the deadline for further nominations has passed, all candidates, by whomever nominated, are to be treated exactly the same. They may withdraw, but having confirmed their withdrawal (see below) they may not rejoin the contest.

The process of candidate withdrawal up to the date six weeks prior to the start date of the Congress is as follows. It contains a 2-week ‘cooling off’ period so that the election manager can know that the candidate is definitely withdrawing, and that the candidate’s nominating body is cognisant of the withdrawal. It still allows the election manager a month before the Congress to prepare what may be quite complex voting papers with a final list of candidates, in light of any formal withdrawals.

1. At least six weeks before the start date of the Congress, the candidate informs the election manager in writing (e.g. email) of his or her intended withdrawal from the election.

2. The election manager informs the candidate that s/he (the election manager) will publicly announce the withdrawal to IAHR member associations after 14 days (actual date to be stated in writing) and that s/he will meanwhile inform the chair or key officer of the candidate’s own nominating body of the intended withdrawal.
3. The election manager, within 3 days, informs the chair or a key officer of the candidate’s nominating committee/association in writing of the candidate’s notification of withdrawal, advising that the withdrawal will be publicised by the [specified] date already notified to the candidate.

4. The candidate may in writing rescind her/his withdrawal during the 2-week period, up to the day before the withdrawal is due to be announced. In this case the election manager will confirm in writing with the candidate (cc to the nominating body) that the candidate is still standing for election and will take no further action. (This is what the ‘cooling-off’ period is for.)

5. If the candidate, having withdrawn and rescinded her/his withdrawal, subsequently withdraws again (still during the 2-week period before the deadline for announcement originally agreed), any such withdrawal must be taken as final. It cannot be rescinded twice (even if it falls within the 2-week period). The announcement of withdrawal will be duly made by the election officer according to the original timetable.

6. Once the public announcement (to member associations and/or on the website) of withdrawal has been made, on or after the agreed date for the announcement, a withdrawal cannot under any circumstances be rescinded.

Process for withdrawal after a date six weeks before the Congress.

7. The candidate informs the election manager in writing (e.g. by email) of his/her intended withdrawal from the election.

8. The election manager advises the candidate that their withdrawal will be final and that there is no possibility to rejoin the contest. If there is any ambiguity in the candidate’s statement of withdrawal the election manager should make reasonable attempts to confirm in writing with the candidate that the candidate has definitely withdrawn; no response will be taken as a confirmation of withdrawal.

9. The election manager then publicises the withdrawal and/or informs the EC, the nominating body etc. only as s/he judges appropriate. In the case of withdrawals within one month of the date of the Congress it may not be practicable for the election manager to alter already-prepared sets of voting papers and candidate lists etc. and s/he may decide to wait until the election item in the IC meeting to announce the final tally of late withdrawals and corresponding amendments to voting choices, bearing in mind that candidates may withdraw up to the moment of the election.

10. It is not the election manager’s role to advise candidates on whether or not they should withdraw, only to inform them of the process and carry it out.

Other suggestions (to assist the election manager):

If a nominee is incapacitated e.g. through serious illness or accident before the election and the election manager is unable to confirm whether the nominee still wishes to stand as a candidate, I would suggest voting should go ahead as the candidate has not withdrawn.

If a nominee dies before the election, I suggest that the most appropriate course of action is for their name to be withdrawn from the election.

I hope these are helpful suggestions.

Appendix III: Revised Rules for IAHR Special & Regional Conferences

Rules and Procedures for IAHR Regional Conferences
(updated August 2017)

In red: added

The IAHR holds a World Congress every five years. In between the five year congresses, the IAHR sponsors at least one conference a year during which the Executive Committee or its officers can hold annual business meetings and the International Committee can meet (usually) triennially. Because the IAHR has increased its membership considerably, there is a growing wish among member societies to hold IAHR regional conferences.

An IAHR regional conference usually focuses on a broader theme with participation by scholars from a particular region (for instance Scandinavia, Latin America, Africa, etc.).

An IAHR regional conference is normally hosted and run by an IAHR regional member association or society. The right to use the IAHR designation involves a number of conditions, depending on the association, the host country and the event in question.

(1) For all IAHR conferences, however, the hosting association should ensure that the academic program and the individual papers contribute to the general aims of the IAHR as spelled out in the IAHR Constitution, “Article 1: [...]The IAHR [...] has as its objective the promotion of the academic study of religions through the international collaboration of all scholars whose research has a bearing on the subject. But for all IAHR conferences, the hosting association should ensure that the academic program and the individual papers contribute to the general aims of the IAHR as spelled out in the IAHR Constitution, ”Article 1: [...]The IAHR [...] has as its objective the promotion of the academic study of religions through the international collaboration of all scholars whose research has a bearing on the subject. The IAHR is not a forum for confessional, apologetical, or other similar concerns.”

(2) An application with a description of the conference’s aims, location, date, and, if available, keynote speakers, should reach the Secretary General no later than 12 months before the planned event.

(3) Any participating representative of the IAHR Executive Committee should be allowed time to speak about the IAHR and its activities.

(4) It is further recommended that attention be paid to gender balance in terms of speakers as well as of participants.

(5) It is also required that the Secretary General be kept informed about developments and provided with conference programs and the address list of the participants.

(6) Mention of the IAHR status shall be made on all documents used for the conference’s promotion as well as in the digital communication (website).

(7) Furthermore, publication of the proceedings (if any) must be consistent with the IAHR congress publication policy. Three free copies of any publications resulting from the event should be provided to the IAHR Secretary General.

(8) If the Executive Committee decides to hold its annual meeting during the event, the hosting association will make efforts to provide a meeting room free of charge.

Furthermore, it is required that attempts are made by the hosting association to cover the travel and living expenses of at least two key people from countries with weak currencies. Such people are usually members of the IAHR Executive Committee or are executives of an IAHR regional or national member association or society. (9) Within two months of the event, the host of an IAHR regional conference should provide the IAHR Secretary General with a brief (max. 1000 words) report on the conference suitable to be reproduced in an IAHR Bulletin or an IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement. In the case a funding was obtained (see below), the report should also mention how it was used, and if applicable, the name(s) of people who could attend the conference thanks to it.

In return, the IAHR regional conference organizers can expect an IAHR presence (at least one or two Executive Committee members), coverage of the event in the IAHR Bulletin, IAHR e-Bulletin Supplement and at the IAHR Website as well as possible access to IAHR avenues of publication such as NVMEN.

IAHR co-sponsorship involves sponsoring conferences arranged by a society outside the membership of the IAHR. In order to obtain IAHR co-sponsorship, it is required (1) that one of the members of the IAHR Executive Committee proposes the sponsorship, no later than 12 months before the planned event, and will normally take an active part in the event. Proposals from constituent (national and regional) member associations and societies, as well as from affiliate societies can also be accepted by the Executive Committee.
