

ISORECEA

International Study of Religion in Eastern and Central Europe Association

CALL FOR PAPERS for the 13th Conference of International Study of Religion in Eastern and Central Europe Association (ISORECEA)
Special Conference of the International Association for the History of Religions (IAHR)

UN(B)LOCKING RELIGION.
STUDYING RELIGION IN TODAY'S CENTRAL AND EASTERN EUROPE
University of Szeged, Hungary
May 24-26, 2018

How can we move forward with the study of religion in Central and Eastern Europe? The Szeged conference takes stock of recent theoretical, empirical, and methodological developments; it brings together different perspectives and types of material, from ethnography and everyday religion to surveys and discourse via visual [photography, films, comics] and literary analysis to sound out contemporary religion.

The title of the conference, "Un(b)locking religion" provides a variety of potential perspectives to study religious developments in the region. Almost three decades ago, religion became un(b)locked in CEE in terms of a new religious freedom. Furthermore, religion became a social factor beyond church walls. However, as a number of studies have shown, religious processes after the fall of Communism were quite diverse; there is no single path of development characteristic for the entire former Eastern Bloc. This is another way to interpret "un(B)loc[k]ing". And looking at the current situation, "un(b)locking" could also refer to the similarities and differences between blocs of confessions, and types of religion. These are just three different ways to look at "un(b)locking religion"; other interpretations are of course also warmly welcome.

We encourage authors to submit paper proposals addressing empirical cases as well as methodological and theoretical aspects of the study of religion in Central and Eastern Europe, but also on other parts of the world and take part in discussion on different topics, like:

- Methodological challenges in the research of religion
- "Soft" methodology in the investigation of religion
- Limits of theoretical approaches to religious changes in CEE
- Images of religion in CEE
- Social Sciences between the science and public sphere
- Religion in everyday life
- Comparative empirical data on religion in CEE
- Non/religious minorities and majorities
- Social inequality and religion
- Religious discourse on Eastern and Western Europe
- Religious education in public and religious schools
- Transformations of religious pluralisms in CEE societies
- Religion and refugee crisis in public of CEE
- Religions and integration of migrants in CEE

Miklós Tomka Award

The ISORECEA Board has established the Miklós Tomka Award to honour Miklós Tomka, the internationally acknowledged and widely esteemed scholar of religion specializing in the Central and Eastern European region, who died unexpectedly in 2010.

The Award is granted based on a competitive basis for the best conference paper submitted to the Award Committee. The paper should refer to the conference theme. The competition is open to early career scholars, with a special focus on PhD students. The Award comprises:

- The publication of the paper in the ISORECEA on-line journal Religion and Society in Central and Eastern Europe;
- Exemption from the conference fee;
- Covering accommodation costs at the conference.

Early career scholars interested in entering the competition are invited to submit their full papers to the email address isorecea2018@gmail.com by January 10, 2018. The winner will be announced by February 30, 2018, which is the final date for registration for being on the program of the conference.

Papers submitted for the Award should be between 5000 and 7000 words long and should strictly follow the rules applying to papers submitted to the ISORECEA journal Religion and Society in Central and Eastern Europe.
